The flag was lowered in honor of five prominent Dutchmen shot as hostages by a Nazi firing squad because their countrymen failed to deliver those who wrecked a German troop train.

U. S. BOMBERS PLASTER ROUEN IN FIRST SWEEP OVER FRANCE

All Planes Return From Assault Led By Eaker in Person

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
AN AMERICAN BOMBER STATION IN BRITAIN, Aug. 17.—Powerful Flying Fortress crews led personally by Brigadier General Ira C. Eaker dropped tons of explosives by daylight today on the railway yards at Rouen in France in the first full-fledged all-American bombing blow against the Axis.

The Americans met and mastered the latest-type German fighter planes. Not a single American bomber was lost, and their bombs hit "the heart of the target."

"They carried out their mission nonchalantly and coolly," said tough, cigar-smoking General Eaker proudly of his men as he climbed out of his "Yankee Doodle" craft which made the historic high-level precision run over Rouen.

To Bomb Fast, Often.
"We will bomb Germany as fast and as often as possible until we win the war," declared Major General Carl Spaatz, commander of the United States Air Forces in the European theater. General Eaker heads the bomber command on General Spaatz's staff.

One American bomber gunner bagged one of the Nazis' newest fighter planes, a Focke-Wulf 190, during the flight, and escorting Allied fighters got two more. The Allies lost two fighters.

United States Army headquarters said the raid on the ancient Normandy capital of Rouen, 87 miles northwest of Paris, was made by 12 Flying Fortresses. "A great pall of smoke and sand was left over the railroad tracks," General Eaker said.

Ground crews cheered as the big ships thundered down onto the field here. Some of the ships alighting after the general's "Yankee Doodle" were named "Berlin Sleeper" and "Birmingham Blitzkrieg."

At their take-off these same ground crews also had labeled some of their explosives "To the Paper Hanger," and "Mustache Slinger."

One helmeted Missouri airman climbed down and cried: "I felt like a million dollars. We all behaved like school kids."

Another grinned and said: "Yes, but I sure was happy when I saw the white cliffs of Dover coming back."

General Spaatz was at the field to greet "Flying General" Eaker. This marks the real start of an ever-increasing American bombing offensive," General Spaatz said.

General Eaker said the Americans made a perfect run over Rouen, the ancient cathedral city where Joan of Arc was martyred at the stake in 1431.

First Major Blow.

Other U. S. bombers made diversionary feints at Dunkirk and the Cherbourg peninsula to mask the middle blow at Rouen. British, Canadian and American fighter pilots escorted these diversion flights as well as running interference at Rouen.

Today's was the first major bomber blow by All-American crews under American direction, although American pilots participated in a brief raid on objectives in Holland July 4, and U. S. pilots have made fighter sweeps with the RAF over France.

General Eaker in conducting the attack aboard one of the powerful B-17 fortress planes was living up to his creed that "air leaders do not send men, they lead them."

To 21-year-old Sergeant Kent L. West, of Blocton, Ala., the "belly gunner" in a fortress, the honor of shooting down the first Nazi fighter plane for the U. S. European Army.

He was riding in his big ship, named "Birmingham Blitzkrieg," when the German pilot flying a Focke-Wulf 190—one of the Nazis' newest warplanes—swooped down. Several shots burst from Sergeant Kent's 50-caliber guns ended that menace.

General Eaker termed the Allied attack a "first major blow."

Five Brazilian Vessels Sunk; Soldiers Lost

RIO DE JANEIRO, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Axis submarines, preying on coastal shipping, have sunk five more Brazilian passenger and cargo ships recently, including the 4,801-ton Baependy, which was carrying soldiers, the government announced tonight in a statement which bitterly criticized the Axis and promised the "crimes" would not go unpunished.

The loss of the Baependy, the 1,905-ton Annibal Benevelo and the 4,872-ton Araraquara was first announced. Later the statement was amended to include the 1,075-ton Arara and the 2,169-ton Itagiba.

All five ships were sunk in the last three days, between Bahia and the state of Sergipe, on the coast below the big eastern bulge of Brazil, the announcement said.

High Losses Denied.

"It must be revealed that the Baependy, which was going north-east, carried an army unit with reduced number of forces, of which only some were convoked reserves," the government said.

"Rumors dispersed about high military losses have not the slightest foundation."

The official announcement made no other reference to casualties. In Buenos Aires, however,

Foreign Minister Enrique Ruiz Guinazu personally conveyed to the Brazilian ambassador the condolences of his government and an appeal for the sinking which "cost so many Brazilian lives."

700 Reported Lost.

(First word of the sinking of the Baependy came in a dispatch from Montevideo, Uruguay, which said the Brazilian embassy there had announced the loss of the ship, described as a transport, with 700 or 800 troops.

Later the Brazilian ambassador to Argentina, Jose de Paula Rodriguez Alves, announced he had telephoned the embassy in Montevideo and had been told no announcement of the sinking was made there. He did not, however, deny the sinking.

"Our country within its traditions does not flinch before such brutality and the government is examining methods to take in the face of these events," said a statement issued by the Department of Press and Propaganda.

"The population should remain calm and confident in the assurance that crimes practiced against the lives and goods of Brazilians will not go unpunished."

Total Brought to 18.
The sinkings brought to 18 the number of Brazilian vessels attacked and sunk for a total of nearly 80,000 tons. Prior to today's announcement Brazil had lost 13 vessels. Another was torpedoed and shelled off the Brazilian coast but reached port after a five-day battle with attackers and a ship-board fire. Losses prior to today numbered 130 lives.

The loss in lives in the new sinkings was not announced.

These disastrous attacks against undefended units of the merchant marine of a peaceful nation whose life goes on far from the war's theater were carried out in disregard of the most elemental concept of human rights," the government statement said.

It noted that the sinkings in the past three days marked "the first time Brazilian ships serving coastal traffic in the transport of passengers and cargo from one state to another have suffered an attack by Axis submarines."

Japs Reported Looking To Defense of Homeland
TOKYO (From Japanese Broadcast), Aug. 17.—(AP)—The war office announced today that Lieutenant General Jun Ushiroku, hitherto chief of staff of the Japanese army in China, had been named commander in chief of central headquarters in Japan and raised to the rank of general.

He was succeeded in the China post by Lieutenant General Shozo Kawabe.

The newspaper Asahi said the appointment was significant "with regard to the increased importance of defense of the mother country and especially of her east coast now that the first phase of war operations in great Asia has come to an end."

Warm Weather Stays, And Showers Predicted
Today should bring another reprieve from the usual August heat, Weatherman Glen Jefferson said yesterday. The official forecast is "continued warm with scattered showers or thunder-showers."

The high temperature yesterday was 83 degrees. The low reading was 70.

Send-Off Fund Will Be Given To Emory Unit

Twenty-five years ago Emory University sent its doctors to war. They manned Base Hospital 43.

On September 1 another Emory University unit will be mobilized, with more than 50 doctors and 75 nurses from Atlanta. They will man Base Hospital 43.

From experience, the men of Hospital 43, World War I, know that an extra fund may make a lot of difference to the men and women of the unit and to the men the unit will serve. So they are collecting an emergency fund to be given the unit when it leaves for service.

The history of World War I unit is contained in annuals and newspapers. Many of the Atlantas—24 doctors, 65 nurses and 154 enlisted men—can tell you the personal history of what happened. Many came back; many still live here.

Trained At Camp Gordon.
They stayed at old Camp Gordon for about five months before they were sent out. They prepared as best they knew how.

These men and others in the profession want to do more than their part, though. They remember the $7,270 fund which was given them for emergencies when they were marching off to World War I. They want the Emory graduates who have received their diplomas in the last 18 years to have that emergency fund.

It may be used for buying additional equipment. Five hundred camps may be needed where only 50 shod up. An enlisted man in the hospital unit may have reason to go home. They want the money to send him.

Discretion in Fund Use.
So when they proudly stand by the doctors who cannot go this time and their students, their associates and their friends go marching off to the front, they want to know they're well equipped.

They want to know that some night when things are tough, when casualties keep coming in, when bandages cover the floor, when unshaved, weary men fight to keep life in mangled bodies—they want to know that the Atlantas have the equipment and supplies and the food to keep the fighters going.

So Dr. Frank Boland Sr., chairman, and Dr. James J. Clark, co-chairman, are preparing the fund. It will be an emergency fund, to be used at the discretion of the leaders—Lieutenant Colonel Hugh Wood and Lieutenant Colonel Ira Ferguson—and the commanding officer, a regular Army man to be assigned to the unit.

SEEK HOUSE POST.
PRESTON, Ga., Aug. 17.—W. O. Fussell and C. E. Bryson have announced as candidates for representative from Webster county in the September 9 primary.

CAPTAIN SMITH

Atlanta Mother Receives Letter On Jap Leaflet

Written on the back of a Jap propaganda sheet, one of the few eyewitness accounts of the Bataan fighting arrived in Atlanta August 13, a letter to Mrs. Fay P. Hill from her son, Eugene Smith, listed by the War Department as missing in action in the Philippines.

"In two months of fighting, we have been on the front line all but 17 days, but that's where I want to be," wrote Smith, who received the Silver Star medal for bravery in April, and was promoted to a captain.

The letter, which was written so compactly that Mrs. Hill used a magnifying glass to read it, was made up of excerpts from a diary he had kept since January 1, three months after arriving in the Philippines. It was dated February 25, 1942.

Three Weeks' Beard.
"January 1. Today we celebrated New Year's Day. We had fireworks, but a little different from what we had last year. The bombers started early this morning and kept it up steadily all day. Last night the Japs started several large fires in Manila, but there was no excuse for it at all, as there are no longer any military objectives there."

"You should see me," he went on. "You would hardly recognize me—my beard has been growing for three weeks, since the Japs captured my bedding roll, including my razor. I've just quit shaving until I capture it back! I guess the Japs have everything I own except what's on my back. The only thing that made me real mad though, was when getting my air mattress. When we start on the offensive I'm going to search the quarters of every Jap general until I find it!"

Small Arsenal.
"I have a small arsenal with me: A .45 automatic with 60 rounds, my 22 automatic with 200 rounds, and two hand grenades. They get kinda heavy carrying them around, but I'll be glad I have them when I contact the Japs."

Page after page of the finely written document described hair-raising encounters and narrow escapes in battle. On January 12 he wrote: "Today has been full of excitement. At 4 a. m. I had moved down toward the main line when we were subjected to the heaviest artillery fire yet. The shells were landing within 50 yards of us. Three of us were behind a large mango tree, and, boy, we really hugged close together! The barrage lasted for two hours, including machinegun and rifle fire. A shell splinter about four inches long hit about a yard from me, a bullet hit within inches of me."

Marines Well Established In Solomons, Navy Says

Japs' Repulse In Naval Battle Is Confirmed

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—(AP)—The first phase of the American invasion of Japanese-held territory in the southwest Pacific has ended victoriously, the Navy disclosed today, with Marine occupation forces in the Guadalcanal-Tulagi area of the Solomon Islands holding "well-established" positions.

The victory was not won without losses, a Navy communique made clear, but the Japanese, in addition to being forced to relinquish territory of great strategic value, lost at least 36 aircraft, suffered damage to their naval forces and had "a number" of troops taken prisoners.

The Navy carefully refrained from announcing the extent of damage to American forces, saying that such information would be of value to the enemy, but it had previously announced that one U. S. cruiser had been sunk, and two cruisers, two destroyers and one transport damaged.

Campaign Continuing.
A naval spokesman said the campaign "is continuing" the Marines' immediate problem apparently being to make their initial positions secure while vigorously hunting down such scattered Japanese forces as remain in the islands occupied. These islands were not named, but presumably included both Guadalcanal, with its airfield, and Tulagi with its excellent harbor.

The Japanese, the communique disclosed, made their greatest effort to break up the American amphibious attack on the night of August 8-9, when they sent a force of cruisers and destroyers to attack the transports and cargo

Churchill, Stalin Set New War Strategy

MOSCOW, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Winston Churchill, Joseph Stalin and United States and British field staff commanders have met for four days in Moscow and reached secret decisions for turning back the Germans on a tremendous battleground, the United Nations disclosed today.

The bare facts of four days of Kremlin conferences, which began with Churchill's arrival in Moscow last Wednesday aboard a four-motored American Liberator bomber with American pilots at the controls, and ended Saturday, were disclosed in communique issued in Moscow and London.

Marks An Epoch.
But a source close to the British prime minister described this first Churchill-Stalin meeting as marking an epoch and added that it might prove a turning point in the war.

There was no doubt that Stalin talked with Churchill on the topic uppermost in the minds of the Russian people—the starting of a second front.

Churchill left Moscow Sunday morning and the communique was issued after he was outside the Soviet Union.

(London viewed the disclosures as meaning that Russia, the United States and Britain had reached a formula on how to beat the Axis and when to open a second front.)

"A number of decisions were reached covering the field of the war against Hitlerite Germany and her associates in Europe," said the Russian communique (making a clear distinction between the European front and that against Japan in the Pacific, where Russia is formally neutral).

Atmosphere Cordial.
"In this just war of liberation both governments (Russia and Britain) are determined to carry on with all their power and energy until complete destruction of Hit-

Meat Rationing For U.S. Now Seen as Likely

CHICAGO, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Meat may be rationed to insure a fair distribution of a short supply in the United States, a government official reported today.

And the American people, he added, may be asked to observe meatless days before any rationing system would be put into operation.

Roy F. Hendrickson, administrator of the Agricultural Marketing Administration, asserted action along those lines should be taken because a 3,000,000,000-pound shortage of meat for civilian consumption would develop in the months ahead.

He told members of the National Association of Retail Meat Dealers that the statistical outlook for the year which began July 1, 1942, was this:

The bumper livestock crop is expected to yield 21.7 billion pounds of meat compared with an average of 17.8 billion for the 1937-41 period. But we shall ship about 3.2 billion pounds to Russia and England to sustain troops now fighting and who will be in combat "when the second front opens."

Our armed forces and our Allies will require approximately 35 per cent of our federally inspected meat production. The quantity of federally inspected meat left for civilian consumers in this country will be about 11 billion pounds. That would be sufficient under normal conditions. But, with the national income at a high level, civilians will want to buy 14 billion pounds. The result: A shortage of three billion pounds.

Council Moves To Spur Scrap Campaign Here

Group Studies Proposal for Sanitary Trucks To Haul Metal.

City council moved yesterday to assist in combating Atlanta for scrap and sent to the health and sanitary committee to study a proposal that the sanitary department collect such material in garbage trucks.

Offered by Alderman Raleigh Drennon and Councilmen Howard Haire and Frank Wilson, all members of the sixth ward delegation in council, the measure instructed the sanitary committee to confer with those in charge of the scrap drive with a view of working out a detailed program to obtain the greatest amount of such materials.

Mayor Hartsfield suggested that sanitary trucks co-operate in making the collection, and H. J. Cates, chief of the sanitary department, said yesterday that if the collection were made some Saturday afternoon and if Atlantians placed that scrap on the curbs fronting their homes, he could assign 40 huge city trucks to the task and that the whole city could be covered in about four hours.

Preliminary estimates were that scores of tons of old scrap would be gathered in the drive if it was a co-ordinated effort.

Council also accepted the resignation of Brigadier General Eugene Oberdorfer as the representative of the Albert Steiner estate on the Grady hospital board of trustees and confirmed the nomination by Mayor Hartsfield of Joseph A. Hirsch to succeed Oberdorfer.

The mayor and council accepted an invitation from Major Frank F. Fling, commander of District No. 1, Georgia State Guard, to attend a barbecue to be given at 7 o'clock Wednesday night, August 26, at Adams park.

$50,000 Damages Sought by Doctor

Charging that he was severely injured in an elevator accident due to the negligence of the defendant, Dr. I. H. Etheridge yesterday filed suit in Fulton superior court for $50,000 damages against the First National Bank.

In his petition, Dr. Etheridge alleged that he entered an elevator at the third floor of a building owned by the defendant last April and that when the operator started the car it swiftly fell a floor and a half before it was arrested by a safety device. When the car stopped, Etheridge charged, it inclined to one side with the result that other passengers jammed him against the wall of the car, wrenching his back and spine and causing other injuries.

Tire Recapping Best Saving, Users Learn

200 Large Consumers, Officials Talk War Conservation.

More than 200 large users of tires in the southeast met here yesterday with representatives of OPA, ODT and Army officials to lay plans for conserving rubber for the war effort.

The meeting was told that some transportation companies were having an abnormally high percentage of blowouts due to overloading tires; that the Army is making experiments with synthetic rubber in this area and that the Army has instituted a number of policies to save rubber by eliminating such items as rubber heels and raincoats containing rubber for soldiers.

Detailed discussion of tire conservation evolved into a technical outline of recapping, which the delegates were told is the best method for preserving tire life. It being pointed out that from 70 to 80 per cent of the original mileage can be obtained from this process.

Speakers were Ernest Leach, Washington OPA expert; John C. Caley, regional field manager of the Office of Defense Transportation; Lowry A. Moore, chief tire inspector of the Army Transport division, Fourth Service Command, and Jack Reid, of the regional OPA tire section, with Ralph Nichols, regional OPA tire rationing representative, presiding.

Moore, speaking for the Army, told the group that before last October all injured tires were junked. "Now," he said, "more than 60 per cent are saved by recapping."

The Army now makes a practice of removing and carefully storing new tires taken from new Army vehicles, and replacing them with recapped tires. "Don't adopt the attitude that this is just another thing that will pass off," he said. "It won't pass off. We have heard from the men who know that we could lose this war."

Reid reminded the transportation men that the local war price and rationing boards are the only valid source of new tires and that quotas, necessarily, are insufficient, even for eligible applicants.

Scrap Heaps At Steel Mills Reported Low

Bare Two to Three Weeks' Supply on Hand, Industry Says.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Steel mill scrap iron and steel piles have shrunk to a bare two to three weeks' supply compared with enough for more than six weeks' operations at the beginning of 1941, the American Iron and Steel Institute reported today.

The institute estimated scrap piles on July 1 totaled 2,429,000 tons, against 3,934,000 tons on January 1, 1941.

The shrinkage since then has put the steel industry on a hand-to-mouth basis insofar as scrap is concerned, "and has prevented steel production from reaching full capacity."

By using a greater-than-normal proportion of pig iron in steel making, however, the institute added, steel producers have been able to produce more of the vital material in the first half of this year than in any other six-month period on record.

The company, which operates from its office at 161 Spring street, N. W., is charged with making extravagant claims for its product in advertising, subsequent to specific prohibitions of that type of advertising in the Federal Trade Commission's order.

Revised Stage Ordinance Drawn

Revision of a stage show censorship, which opponents said would virtually outlaw stage performances in Atlanta, was proposed in city council yesterday and was sent to the council's ordinance and legislative committee for study.

The new proposal has the approval of both theatrical men and the Carnegie Library Board, which still retains a restricted censorship right.

Councilmen Roy Bell and J. Allen Couch are authors of the revised measure, which makes it unlawful to stage any performance which has been disapproved by the board, or an established agent of the board. It also prohibits sale of tickets for any performance which the board disapproves.

The original ordinance prohibited any exhibition or the sale of tickets to any performance which had not been first approved by the board or its agent.

Record Price Paid For Valdosta Livestock

VALDOSTA, Ga., Aug. 17.—Sensational prices for tobacco on the Valdosta market last week were almost pushed into the background, when feeder hogs sold at the Valdosta Stock Yards auction up to $17.05 per 100 pounds—the highest level ever reached on this market.

Commissioner of Agriculture Tom Linder urged support yesterday for a concerted movement to hold enough cotton off the market to force the price up to 20 to 22 cents a pound.

At present, cotton is selling for about 18 cents a pound. In the Market Bulletin, Linder published a statement in which J. E. McDonald, Commissioner of Agriculture of Texas, urged farmers not to sell their cotton for less than 22 cents a pound.

Indorsing this and expressing hope that it would receive united backing in the cotton belt, Linder said that "certainly no farmer should be asked to sell his cotton for less than 20 to 22 cents."

"During the period from 1919 to 1929, the average price of middling cotton 7-8-inch staple on New York and New Orleans cotton exchanges was 22.5 per pound. Everything the farmer buys today is much higher than it was during that 10-year period."

Second Whiteout Big Improvement Despite Rain

The final dress rehearsal before a full test of the Atlanta metropolitan area's civilian defense forces next Monday went off without a hitch last night. It was much more successful than the whiteout two weeks ago.

In the first place, the control panel at headquarters was screened off. That prevented onlookers from crowding in among the men who make instant decisions as damage reports come in as to the need of auxiliary police, firemen, repair crews, ambulances and the like.

This also prevented the stacking up of messages at headquarters, which was one of the more serious bottlenecks at the first whiteout. Messages were handled as quickly as they came in last night, quietly and efficiently.

A blinding rain that came up soon after the "red" report set sirens wailing at 9:45 o'clock did not dampen the spirit of civilian defense workers. Fire equipment, ambulances, squad cars and repair trucks moved on schedule.

One of the outstanding phases of the practice was the smooth efficiency of the American Women's Voluntary Service. These women, who have passed the Army driving test and who are well trained in automobile mechanics, drive "incident officers" to bombing scenes.

The more serious bombings require the direction of trained officers, who go directly from control headquarters. The AWVS drivers take them. And the male skeptic who sneers at women drivers should take a ride in a rain-storm with an "incident driver."

These women have completed 20 hours of mechanical training, 30 hours of first aid, 15 hours of map reading, 20 hours of convoy and blackout driving, and 30 hours of civilian protection plus hours of lectures. They know their stuff and they can drive.

George M. Phillips, director of the corps, observed the blackout from Decatur. George Brodnax, executive officer, was in charge at headquarters.

Atlanta Dead In Army Plane Crash in East

Lieutenant J. J. Fields Killed in Peru Mountain Wreck.

Lieutenant J. J. Fields, a former student at Georgia Tech and the only son of Mrs. Ethel Fields, of 1354 Peachtree street, was among the 17 men killed Saturday night when an Army transport plane crashed into Peru mountain, in the Berkshire hills of Massachusetts.

Mrs. Fields was notified of her son's death in a telegram from the War Department yesterday.

Only three men out of the 20 aboard the transport survived the crash, the announcement said. Sergeant Robert Lee, 23, of Columbus, Ohio, managed to drag two companions from the burning wreckage.

Corporal Alonzo Pearson, of Somerset county, Pa., and Private James Fern, of Abingdon, Va. The big ship was on a routine mission out of Pope Field, Fort Bragg, N. C., when it crashed into the mountain, the Army said.

An investigation of the accident—one of the worst in the history of United States military aviation—has been launched, but the Army released no details on the possible cause. The ship sheared tree tops for 100 yards as it

First Lady Gets 'Stern Letter' For Commenting on Weather

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said today in her syndicated column, "My Day," that she had received a "stern letter" from the Censorship Board for commenting on the weather.

"The censor has written me a very stern letter about my remarks on the weather, and so from now on I shall not tell you whether it rains or whether the sun shines where I happen to be."

George A. Carlin, general manager of United Features, which syndicates Mrs. Roosevelt's column, said he had received a communication last week specifically referring to Mrs. Roosevelt's discussion of "rain and showers" in one of her columns.

Carlin said he forwarded the censor's letter to Mrs. Roosevelt as a matter of routine.

The censorship code of wartime practices for the press provides that news stories about weather occurrences must be restricted to an area not to exceed 150 miles from the point of publication.

plunged atop the 2,200-foot peak. Lieutenant Fields enlisted in the Army Air Corps upon completion of his third year at Georgia Tech on October 13, 1941. He went from here to Maxwell Field, in Alabama; returned to a field at Douglas, Ga., for primary training and took basic training at Albany, Ga.

Completing his advanced training at Turner Field, Albany, Lieutenant Fields received his wings and commission last May 20. His next assignment was Pope Field.

A native of McDonough, he attended grammar and high school at Austell and entered the mechanical engineering school at Tech at the age of 17. He received the Army commission at 21. Other survivors include two uncles, J. M. Fields, of Atlanta, and Roy G. Fields, of Montgomery, Ala.; his grandfather, Clifford G. Fields, McDonough, and his great-grandmother, Mrs. Mary Jane Fields.

Funeral services and burial will be held in Atlanta.

Tammany Hall Supports Mead For Governor

Action All But Rules Out Possibility of Compromise.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Tammany Hall's executive committee late today adopted a resolution supporting United States Senator James M. Mead for the gubernatorial nomination.

The committee's action, all but ruling out possibility of a compromise and presaging a last-ditch fight between Mead and Attorney General John J. Bennett Jr., came as state party leaders awaited a conference tomorrow that may lift the curtain on the delegate strength of the two candidates.

Mead is the acknowledged choice of President Roosevelt; Bennett is backed by State Party Chairman James A. Farley.

Unless opposing party leaders agree on a single candidate at the conference called for tomorrow night by Farley, it appeared certain that the Democratic convention, opening in Brooklyn Wednesday, would be split in its first floor fight in 20 years.

Homemade Record Messages Banned to Soldiers Overseas

Don't waste your time making records of sentimental messages for your soldier boy overseas on your home recording machine, because he will never get your record, the War Department said yesterday, following an order banning the transmission of all recorded personal messages between troops abroad and relatives or friends in the United States.

The order applies equally to records intended for short-wave radio broadcast or for actual transportation.

"This method of communication is dangerous to the national security," the War Department announcement said, "and is unsatisfactory in that there is no assurance the message will reach the person for whom it was intended."

Neither will the ban extend to participation of overseas troops in short-wave interviews or entertainment programs approved by the War Department.

Action Delayed On Soldiers' Voting Bill

Senate Consideration of Measure Scheduled for Thursday.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—(AP) Senate consideration of the bill to permit soldiers and sailors in continental United States to vote by mail was postponed today until Thursday after some senators criticized it and others asked an opportunity to study it further.

Senator George, Democrat, Georgia, contended that the measure would extend control over the qualifications of voters in the states and "open the way to dictatorship" although he approved the principle of enabling soldiers to vote.

Democratic Leader Barkley, Kentucky, expressed "grave doubts" of the constitutionality of the measure, already approved in slightly different form by the house. Barkley said that the constitution of Kentucky required the personal appearance of voters at the polls and expressed doubt that congress could legalize absentee voting in states where it is constitutionally prohibited.

Senate Passes Bill To Speed Dependent Pay

Vote Sends Measure to Roosevelt for Final Action.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—(AP) The senate today approved on a voice vote a bill permitting living allowances due the dependents of service men to be paid as soon as the necessary bookkeeping can be completed. It wipes out a provision in the original allotment bill which barred any payments until after November 1. The measure now goes to the White House.

Whether the bill actually will speed the payment of allowances since the law went into effect June 1 was a matter of conjecture. War Department officials told the Senate Military Committee that it would be a physical impossibility to make all the necessary computations and write the checks before November 1. James V. Forrestal, undersecretary of the Navy, had informed Representative Bulwinkle, Democrat, North Carolina, acting speaker of the house, that the Navy could make its payments now and recommended doing it for the sake of morale.

Senator Attacks Tribune For Adverse Editorial

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—(AP) Senator Guffey, Democrat, Pennsylvania, today attacked the Chicago Tribune for an editorial in which it had said the New Deal was accused of "playing politics with human need."

Guffey said the writer attempted to accuse the administration of playing politics in connection with the bill to pay subsistence allowances to dependents of service men, by making the payments fall due November 1, the day before election.

Guffey added that Senator Thomas, Democrat, Utah, "emasculated" the statement of the Tribune in a letter to the paper in which he quoted Thomas as saying:

"Though it is generally agreed that politics has been adjoined and that the common enemy is Germany, Italy and Japan, the Tribune in this editorial is attempting to arouse public indignation purely from a political standpoint over a condition which does not exist."

"The discussion in the senate on July 30, 1942, and August 10, 1942, participated in by Senators Vandenberg, Thomas of Utah, Clark of Missouri, Lucas and others, clearly shows that the date 'November 1' was placed in the bill at the request of the War Department and no political significance can be attached to that date."

Getting The Range at Fort Mac

Selectees passing through Fort McPherson are not always merely "serial numbers" to the men in charge of their processing. Soldier-clerks occasionally get a jolt at oddities and tongue-twisters in the names of men they handle.

Private First Class Daniel B. Miller became so interested in the unusual ones that he is making a collection of them in spare time from his work in the records section.

There are plenty of "Jesse Jameses," "George Washingtons" and Robert E. Lees who are trying to live up to their namesakes as fighting men. More rare are names such as Four Acre Sweet, who recently was inducted at the reception center. And names like Seaborn E. Fullilove, Xenophon B. Murphy, Stelios G. Pappalambrou and Chris Papastavropoulos have made plenty of non-coms stutter.

Recently a Harold White (no middle name), of Pansey, Ala., and Harold White (no middle name), of Daisy, Ga., passed through the post at the same time.

Men being processed at the reception center may soon be able to hear a short organ recital each evening on the organ at the post chapel, according to a plan being worked out by Chaplain Arthur C. Van Saun.

Soldier-musicians passing through Fort McPherson will be given brief instruction and rehearsals on the organ, which plays through an amplifier in the steeple of the chapel. Each afternoon they will then be asked to play a few selections as a "moral boost" for fellow enlistees.

The first group of "I-B" men—enlisted for noncombatant service because of minor physical defects—has been assigned to Fort McPherson from the reception center. Lieutenant M. A. Hagerstrand announced. The noncombatants will receive some regular military training, but will be used mainly to replace men at posts, camps and stations who are physically qualified for combat duty.

Atlanta Aviation Future

The impact of the advances in aviation has been particularly noticeable in so far as it applies to warfare. It will be well if some attention is given to the changes as they will affect Atlanta and Georgia when peace comes. Developments have been so extensive their study and application cannot be delayed until after the war.

While war conditions have changed the character of operations at the municipal airport, and have resulted in the building of two new airports, they have not in any way reduced the need for expanding facilities.

For example, runways only recently completed at the municipal airport will be too short almost in the immediate future. Hangar and ground facilities have been radically expanded, and more will be necessary. The DeKalb airport has been utilized exclusively by the Navy for training purposes—had it been open to other planes the volume of Navy use would have made it impractical. Rickenbacker Field in Cobb county is little used today, but it is there for the bombers to come from the lines of the Bell plant. Even so, it has been of help to the Navy and to the Civil Air Patrol for training purposes.

It is no accident that Atlanta was selected by the Army Air Forces for a so-called transient base. The city has been the hub of aerial transportation for some years, and remained so under Army organization. It also will be a hub for CAP courier service.

To keep this dominant position in the air transportation world, Atlanta must look ahead and plan ahead for the day in the not far distant future when the municipal airport will have to have longer runways and more facilities for ground handling of planes; to the day when auxiliary fields of various kinds will be vital to the continued growth of the municipal field; to the day when private flying will demand accommodations not now available; to the day when air freight will require great transfer warehouses and handling equipment; and for the day when Atlanta will be a great port for the clearance of goods and passengers to overseas areas.

The time to prepare for this expansion is now. It will not be a single great development, but provision must be made now for gradual expansion of facilities as they are required. If they are ready when needed, then Atlanta has a future in aviation that will dim all transportation has meant to this city in the past.

Government Publicity

The Office of War Information, headed by Elmer Davis, has undertaken a task which, if successful, will win for it the blessings of uncensored newspaper editors.

The OWI is attempting a survey of the publicity sent out by the various government departments, bureaus, offices and individuals, with the objective of reducing the total whenever it can be done without handicapping necessary governmental sources of information. Mr. Davis has approached this job from both ends. Six newspapers in each of the 48 states have been asked to save all government publicity materials received in one week and turn it over to the OWI. A committee of five public relations men named by Mr. Davis is now assembling and analyzing the material. And, according to one assistant, at least, some of it "is just a little incredible."

Some of this governmental publicity material is, of course, valuable, even essential. In time of war the complaint has been that, in regard to real war activities, the information furnished the public has been insufficient, rather than contrived. However, even desirable information is sent out in far too voluminous form. If press relations "experts" would only remember the severe space limitations which face practically all newspapers nowadays, they would curtail their copy to 10 per cent of its present length and thereby secure a far more favorable consideration from publishers.

Anyway, the great bulk of the kind of governmental publicity which Mr. Davis and the OWI is investigating goes directly to the waste paper baskets of 99 per cent of the editors who receive it. Publication is out of the question for two reasons. Lack of space is one and almost complete lack of interest to the general reading public is the other.

Incidentally, elimination of the 90 per cent of such material that is waste effort would go a long way to relieve the seriously clogged conditions of the mails, especially at the Washington post office.

For Protection

In urging compulsory fingerprinting for every person in the United States over the age of ten years, the National Identification Association has roused opposition in some quarters. Yet the arguments in favor of the plan seem to outweigh those against, if viewed from a strictly logical point of view.

To name a few of the arguments on the "pro" side, one needs but to cite the presence of unregistered aliens in our midst who are in this country to do us no good; the big problem of evacuation of populations from coastal regions, in case of the necessity for such action and, lastly, but by no means least, the vital importance of identifying defense industry workers.

One has only to call to mind the landing in this country of the Nazi saboteurs to take an adult view of the fingerprint situation. The citizen with nothing to fear certainly has no hesitancy about being fingerprinted. The others—those who aim at the destruction of this country—will squeal. But it seems that by fingerprinting all, there is protection for all.

The Wolverine

News that the Wolverine, this country's first iron-hulled ship, has been consigned to the junkman to be scrapped for conversion into steel, brought something of a nostalgic, tearful twinge to many. It seemed a shame that the 98-year-old ship should go this way. Yet on more clear-sighted analysis—was this such a bad fate? Was this really a sad end for the vessel that had served its nation so well?

The answer is an unequivocal "no." For that old ship will not disappear. True, its present form will not be recognized. In its transmigration, it will suffer some indignities. But it will emerge as tanks and guns to fight our enemies, the Nazis and the Japs. Is this a bad end? It is a glorious "finis" to one phase of the ship's life. It is really a more glorious beginning for the old hull.

The old Wolverine, with all its historic background and implications, might have remained merely a museum piece. It might have been preserved as something of a historical curiosity, to be gawked at by school children and to be mauldlinized by sentimentalists. Now, it will become not only one fighter for freedom, but many fighters for freedom.

Let us not weep for the Wolverine. Let us bid her a cheerful rebirth of liberty.

Public Transportation

Effect of gasoline and tire rationing throughout the nation comes to light with figures recently released by the American Transit Association. These show that public transit riding throughout the country during July topped all-time previous records. The number of riders on rapid transit, street car and local bus lines reached a grand total of one and a half billion passengers during the month.

The figures further disclose that the greatest increases in riding are being registered in small and medium-sized communities. The reason for this is that these populations have heretofore depended on private automobiles to a greater extent than the larger cities. Now that gasoline and tires are being rationed, these populations quite naturally turn to other transportation means. It is axiomatic that more persons, in proportion to population, use rapid transit lines in metropolitan centers than in other areas, even in normal times.

Atlanta, with its own tremendous increase in the number of bus and street car passengers, is among cities affected. With the coming of fall and the winter seasonal upturn, it becomes apparent the problem of shortage of transit carrying capacity will grow more acute.

It was a fine and attentive crowd which heard Ellis Arnall at the courthouse last Saturday afternoon, and his address was splendidly received. The many despatches from the Talmadge ranks by men who can no longer follow the Man from Sugar Creek, with no new acquisitions reported, indicate that Gordon county has already swung into the Arnall column, with the drift steadily gaining momentum. Reports from the sporting element are that Talmadge money is hard to find, even at odds, and even money betting is out of the question.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

SOLOMONS' IMPORTANCE WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—The importance of the battle over the Solomon Islands is far greater than the immediate military gains involved.

On the military side, an American victory at Tulagi means merely that we have removed a Japanese threat to our South Pacific supply line and have prevented or further postponed any attempted invasion of Australia. It would mean, also, that we have taken the first of a series of island bases which are to be used in a stepping-stone attack against all Japanese-occupied territory in the Pacific. From the Solomons, once our position there is secure, we could extend the attack to the Bismarcks, New Guinea, the Gilberts, the Philippines, and even to Singapore.

Unless we are able to beat the Japs down by air raids on their cities, we will have to recapture each of these island outposts just as we have occupied the Solomons.

But other considerations are apparent in this, our first offensive action in the Pacific, which far outstrip the military advantages going with a Tulagi victory. Throughout the world there are a number of nations sitting on the sidelines which may yet prove the balance of power in the war.

There is India in the Far East; Turkey, the Arab countries and Egypt in the Middle East; Spain and Vichy-France in Europe, and Chile and the Argentine in South America.

India is now seething with unrest against the British. Turkey, with its 2,000,000-man army, which first staged a coup d'etat against the British in 1913, has been intimidated into a position of forced neutrality by the Nazi gains in Russia. Spain would not hesitate to enter the war on the Axis side if she were convinced Germany will win.

By the same token, Vichy-France and the two South American countries would be certain to play the Axis game closer if they thought the United Nations had no chance to win.

ARE WE DECADENT? Ever since the war started and before, Germany and Japan have been preaching to the world that the United States was a decadent nation.

Great riches and too much luxury had caused us to grow soft, they charged. Their propaganda efforts have continually harped on the theme that the American giant which emerged from the last war as the most powerful nation in the world had lost its grip and was no longer a force to be feared.

Evidently Hitler and Hirohito completely sold themselves on this idea, as it is inconceivable otherwise that they would have deliberately provoked us to war.

The stunning blow our naval forces received at Pearl Harbor was cited as further proof of our decadence. Neutral nations were told that we had been knocked out of the war before we got in it and would never recover from the blow at Pearl Harbor.

After Pearl Harbor the American giant stumbled along from one defeat to another. We suffered the Japs to take most of our possessions in the Pacific and we were helpless to prevent the downfall of the British at Singapore. We have been losing the battle of the Atlantic and we have even permitted the Japanese to occupy an isolated outpost in the Aleutian Islands.

GIANT ARISING But after six months of stumbling the giant began raising himself to his full stature. Our first signs of activity were in the Coral Sea and Midway Island battles. These, however, were more defensive actions, like a wounded bear charging on his pursuers.

Now, eight months after Pearl Harbor, the American giant has sufficiently recovered to start on his first rampage. The Solomon Islands invasion marks our first offensive move. All of the neutral nations sitting on the sidelines from India to Egypt will be watching the outcome in the Solomons. They will be looking for some cue to American strength.

India's plunge into civil disobedience was inspired by Gandhi's belief that the Axis nations are winning the war. Never would he have gone in its favor. Egypt is still neutral because a substantial element in its population is dubious of an Allied victory. The Vichy government of France continues to yield to Nazi pressure for the same reason.

EXHILARATION OF VICTORY Hence the American of certain to have an electric effect on these nations. A victory for us there would have a quieting effect on India. It would stiffen the backs of Vichy-France. It would have a restraining influence on all Axis-inclined nations throughout the world.

One and above that, it would be certain to have a highly stimulating effect on the morale of our people and our Allies. England and Russia have no reason to doubt us, but there is nothing more exhilarating in war than victory.

Undoubtedly our own governmental and military leaders have been fully cognizant of these multiple factors from the beginning of the Solomons move. Under the circumstances, it is inconceivable that we could have allowed for the possibility of failure.

By RALPH T. JONES.

Scrap Metals And Victory.

Every piece of metal junk you dig out of your cellar, attic, garage or garden shed brings the hour of victory over the Axis seconds and minutes nearer. The total of such metal junk collected by all the folks like you—all the neighbors—all over the nation will bring victory many months, maybe years, nearer.

The American Salvage Committee, 350 Fifth avenue, New York, has recently released an interesting explanation of the use of such junk in our war effort, in question and answer form. It is titled "What's What on Scrap?" And it tells a number of facts most of us never knew before.

For instance, what's the difference between "scrap" and "junk"? Not much. Merely that scrap is junk that has been collected and prepared for re-use by industry. The use of scrap is to make supplies of raw material go further. The steel industry is, of course, the shining example.

How They Make Steel.
The first step in the manufacture of steel is to make pig iron. To make one ton of pig iron you take two tons of iron ore, half a ton of limestone and three-quarters of a ton of coke. From that more than three tons of material you'll get one ton of pig iron after the blast furnace has done its job. Pig iron is a form of iron but it contains many things not wanted in steel. Too much carbon, silicon, etc.

The next step is to transform that pig iron into steel. Let's take the open hearth furnace process which makes more than 90 per cent of our steel. An open hearth furnace is a huge thing, something like a kettle, or pot. Some will hold as much as 200 tons of metal. They are heated by gas, oil or tar. The put about half pig iron and half scrap into the furnace. That's where the scrap—that you and all the folks supply, comes in. You see about half the steel that comes from the open hearth furnaces is made from scrap. An electric furnace, from which most of the very finest alloy steels come, uses about nine parts of scrap to one part of pig iron.

Where We Have the Edge.
The United States alone has an annual steel production capacity of about 90,000,000 tons. The combined Axis powers, including the occupied portions of Europe, can produce only about 61,000,000 tons per year. And, in addition to this margin in our favor, Russia is producing about 21,800,000 tons annually and the British Empire 20,600,000 tons.

So, how much scrap do we need?

Well, in 1941, the U. S. steel industry turned out 83,000,000 tons of steel. (Smashing all previous records by wide margin, incidentally.) In making this steel they used over 45,000,000 tons of scrap. This year the output will total 95,000,000 tons. Less than the 90,000,000 capacity, you notice, but that's because there isn't enough scrap available. The normal sources of scrap supply aren't enough for war times abnormal rates of steel production.

Normally, scrap comes from the trimmings and left over pieces of steel from shipbuilding, yards, the chips and borings of steel from machine shops, the old rails and junk cars and locomotives from the railroads and the collections of the automobile "grave yards" and the junkmen generally.

But that isn't enough, today. That's where you and I and all of us come in. That is why we are urged, may be begged, to give every ounce of old metal we can find around the house or shop or office or factory. To make up the deficit in material which must be made up if we are to bring our steel production to capacity.

We can do it. But it is strictly up to you and to me. Let's get busy and comb the place—every place—for every scrap of old metal.

An old flatiron will make two steel helmets. An old ash can will provide a helmet for steel. An old set of tire chains is good for twenty 37 mm. antiaircraft shells. An old shovel makes four hand grenades.

Get busy! Let's shoot some Nazis and Japs with our own scrap metal!

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Into the Front Office NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Well, like I was saying, it wasn't bad enough to have to run the bases backward that year and the old man's old lady sets on the bench all summer telling him how to run the ball club and she also writes a baseball column for the papers, too, but that wasn't nothing to the headaches they had in the front office. There wasn't nothing she wouldn't shove her nose into. The first thing anybody knows why she is telling Eddie Deezanose how to bring baseball to the masses although he has been handling box office over 30 years.

"But, Mrs. Dissenat," he would say, "I will have to respectfully thank you not to mess around in affairs that are none of your affairs and just because your husband is hired to run the team why, nevertheless, box office is a strictly different matter altogether."

Well, we had plenty troubles of our own on the field but poor Eddie is on a terrible spot because we start the season looking like a sure thing and then she brings in that bean-bag coach from Smith's College and the female first baseman and the first thing you know we haven't got enough fans to make a quartet. The business office is running into the red every day and Eddie says the ways things are going it will take 50 years to pull out of the hole even if we win 50 pennants.

Brings in Professor But Mrs. Dissenat has been hanging around with some professors and a lot of them are foreigners and all they seem to do is set around and hold discussions and she says Deezanose is a slave to dead traditions and the way you got to do nowadays you got to be daring and try new innovations and if they don't work, why try something else. But the past is outmoded, she says, and if you go back to old methods, well, even if they pay off in results and profits, why that is a step backward and you are defeated. So she brings in a Bulgarian professor to look over the books and the professor says no wonder we aren't drawing any business because Eddie hasn't got any social consciousness. He says the way to do you have got to appeal to the masses. He says baseball is not just a thing that works by itself but you have got to make it work, although he never saw a ball game in his life.

"The first thing, he says, 'you got to make bold decisions and no more compromise so we will first of all abolish right field and center field. We will just have one field and that will be left field, but there is no use hoping that the men who have been playing right and center will be able to co-operate because they are used in tradition so they are fired, but we will hire two more left fielders who really believe in left field and hereafter we will have three left fielders.'"

"Then," he says, "we will popularize the bleachers again because we have been catering to the economic royalists in the boxes and reserved seats so hereafter we will take the dough we get from these parasites and every man who buys a bleacher ticket for 50 cents, why will give them a premium of $1.25."

All Bleachers Eddie, he put it down in figures that you can't do that, but the Bulgarian called him a Wall Street tool and the next day there was a riot when half the town tried to get into the bleachers. The bleacher business was so big they first had to take over the end sections of the grandstands and inside of a week practically the entire park was bleachers, all except the best boxes and reserved seats behind the plate and they were filled with their personal friends, mostly professors and dames wearing flat-shoe shoes and horn-rim glasses, who come in on passes.

The stockholders began to yip, but the old lady, she puts the Bulgarian on the air to give them hell for being Copperheads and the Bulgarian gives up figures to show that whereas a few weeks ago the masses were starving for baseball why now the attendance was the greatest in baseball history and the receipts were breaking all records. Poor Eddie, he tries to show that yes the deficit was running way ahead of the receipts and the Bulgarian called him a well-fed pig and over the air and press he went to the fans to vote whether they wanted him to be business manager and baseball for everybody or if they wanted Eddie Deezanose and baseball for the few.

The stockholders beefed about their investment, but the old lady and some of her friends from Smith's College they got up a parade with signs saying, "Profits vs. Humanity" and "Baseball Belongs to the People not the Money Kings." And the Bulgarian explained that the deficit wasn't a deficit but an investment, and Eddie went crazy and ate a bar of soap and died.

I still have to say she was always polite and nice in her way, but just the same if it was my old lady done like that and I was running the club I still say I would have tagged her right on the nose for luck.

Army divisions instead of one, comprising a total of at least 30,000 men, probably will make up the first contingent of the National Guard to go to France."

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL.

CRACKPOTS, INC. A jury convicted William Dudley Pelley a few days ago, on 11 counts of sedition. It was he who organized "The Silver Shirts."

The Silver Shirts had a group in Atlanta in 1933, or thereabouts. They never amounted to anything. This, however, is about Pelley.

The people who followed or aided Pelley, many of them men of wealth, paid him and his associates about $250,000 across a period of eight years.

This was the net, with expenses deducted. Now, surely, this man who could so inspire people they paid him a profit of a quarter of a million dollars, must have been a sound sort of person?

Well, not quite. Let's look at him. In his many publications Pelley recounts how he "died and went to heaven in 1928. He remained there for seven minutes."

It was a brief time, yet when Pelley got back to earth he discovered that in heaven he had been given an oracle, an unseen oracle, who was always near to whisper in his ear and advise him.

Pelley wrote of this. Indeed, it was one of his strengths. There were thousands of small people with small incomes who sent him dollars and quarters which they needed for bread and meat. They sent it to him to assist his crusade.

He wrote that he stopped smoking when his oracle slapped a pipe out of his, Pelley's, mouth.

He said, after it happened, that the oracle told him about the coming rise of Hitler in Germany and directed him to form "The Silver Shirts."

AN ODD FACT Now, the average American, hearing of Pelley and the oracle which slapped pipes out of his mouth and which whispered in his ear, would have said, "Aw, the man's nuts," and forgot about him.

That would normally be all right. The man is nuts, according to the American version of the word.

But it isn't quite as simple as that. Pelley attracted many a wild-eyed fanatic. There are hundreds of them in any city. They hear voices and have "visions" in a small way.

He attracted thousands of others, many of them women, who defied all who tried to listen to Pelley or subscribe to "The Liberator," one of his many publications.

They were a loud, vulgar lot of women who picketed and wore placards and otherwise gave release to some psychotic impulse. He hated Franklin D. Roosevelt.

This caused many men of wealth to send him money. They would not like it if they were accused of being disloyal to their country. Yet they were, Pelley's "oracle" led him to work with the enemy agents in this country. Some men of wealth sent him money.

You will find those men very, very often in almost any community, who will stroke the head of some dangerous fanatic because he flatters their prejudices, because he puts into violent words and deeds their own suppressed emotions and anger.

The classic example, of course, is the support given the loud-talking, rabble-rousing politician in Germany called Hitler. It is never well to forget that for years he was laughed at in Germany. Rich men and poor men, all well meaning if selfish, laughed at him but helped him along, thinking to use him. He destroyed most of the rich men who helped him. Their businesses, many of their lives, and all their property is gone.

Why would people pay a profit of $250,000 to a man who had his pipe slapped out of his mouth by an invisible oracle? They would believe a man who claimed to have spent seven minutes in heaven?

THE TROUBLE IS You never can be sure. That's the trouble. You may stroke the head of one of these erratic, eccentric rabble-rousers and get a Pelley, who ends up collected as a traitor, for having helped the enemy.

Or, you may stroke another and get a Huey Long. Huey was a salesman until he got interested in politics. There were many interests which stroked Huey. When he died, killed by one of the many men he had ruthlessly tried to ruin, he was sole owner of the state of Louisiana. This is not an exaggerated statement. He controlled every office, in state and county.

The corporation which had stroked him in earlier years, found themselves paying huge and unwilling tribute to him. They hated and feared him then.

It rarely fails to work just that way.

The eccentric, the rabble-rouser, the wild-eyed one come and go; shouting, making the people laugh with their loud speeches and their calls. It seems to do something. Many people laugh and say "Here is a harmless fellow who has my prejudices. I will help him apply them."

Pretty soon it's too late. He starts applying others.

When dealing with one of these persons it is always best to remember that it is later than you think.

Very few of them, like Pelley, have spent seven minutes in heaven.

Since Labels Can Be Faked, It Is Best to Analyze What Is Inside

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

For many years it has been taken for granted that certain skilled mechanics needed seven years to learn their trade. They encouraged the belief, and thus protected themselves from competition, for a seven-year apprenticeship does not appeal to impatient youth.

But war's necessity has shown that girls and housewives can learn the trade in seven weeks. This doesn't mean that a girl is especially gifted, for men acquire equal skill in the same period of intensive training. It means only that we have been fooling ourselves.

Since history began, the well-born and well-schooled have believed and taught others to believe that they alone were qualified to rule. This superstition has survived even in America. Yet men almost without education—some of them unable to read or write when they came into power—have ruled great Russia and developed the land's resources and prepared it against invaders with a wisdom and far-sighted efficiency that astounded the world.

In our own land there is superstitious faith in the wonder-working powers of a college diploma. Only college graduates are supposed to be qualified to become officers and gentlemen. Truth the Army now tries to draw its combat officers from the ranks, but 80 per cent of those selected for promotion are college men, while only 12 per cent of the drafted are graduates.

This policy might seem sound if all graduates earned their diplomas. This superstition has survived even in America. Dipping into—and sticking my neck out—into something which is none of my business, I purpose to discuss gray hair—on women's heads.

Yes, I know they have discovered a vitamin supposed to arrest men's hair turning gray. And maybe it will turn it back to its original color. I am not interested. My hair's original color caused no fair damsel to seek my autographs or offer telephone numbers. And what is left, I am told, makes me look most distinguished. Who told me? Why, a most intelligent young woman who was selling me six pairs of hose at a wholesale price, merely to introduce the line among people who count.

But about feminine gray hair. Or silver hair. I'm interested in that.

In the last year or two, gadding on trolley cars and doing my pedestrian exercises on midtown streets, I have observed an amazing number of beautiful women with hair as shiny-silvery as a new half-dollar.

They don't look like grandmothers—though a gray hair meant grandmother's goodlooking enough to capture an admiral or a major-general or a retired executive.

They look about forty-five, going on forty-six. They are well groomed (that sounds like a racing stable term, but it's in accept the pink glow of health (yes, I read the beauty shop ads), and they step lively.

Silver Threads Among the Gray. That was written a long, long time ago. A gray hair meant a woman was through with life and ready to take care of the grandchildren and do the cooking and go up to her room when company called and take off her corset and read an uplifting book.

But look at them today! Platinum blondes were the cat's whiskers (you see how far behind I am on my slang) in the reign of Jean Harlow and her successors. And what is a platinum blonde but a gal with a skilled beauty specialist?

What I want to know is: Does a woman who finds the first gray hairs on her comb hurry down to the beauty shop and have it all silvered? Or does she fool around a while and touch it up here and there? Women I know are reticent on the subject.

Anyway, I've observed some four-score women of sprightliness, as in getting off a trolley, who look as if they'd go strong for a dinner-dance date, who are adorned with hair of silver, with a little curly where they're most effective.

A great many writers of letters to the newspapers appear worried about our soldiery. These dances. These debutantes. These young girls from the five-and-ten.

That doesn't worry me. But if these silver-haired dames—or those I have observed with interest—ever start out on the predatory path, the Lord help our nation.

I don't think the corporals and sergeants need be disturbed. But think what might happen to our colonels and generals.

Built for Dwarfs?

It is possible that the builders of store-front awnings, the kind that fold up when cranked, designed them with a race of mid-dwets in mind.

Because there are half-a-dozen on my accustomed pedestrian route which are so low I have to walk around them, which means sometimes stepping off the curb. I don't mind cracking my skull, but a hat costs money.

And I'm no giant. Just six feet, even. Surely are enough six-footers in Atlanta to justify consideration from awning erectors.

Sir William Osler, famed surgeon, once delivered an address at Oxford (the English Oxford), according to Sales Log, in which he clarified an intricate problem as follows:

"The karygranulomes, not the idiogranulomes or microsomenstrum in the protoplasm of the spermatogone, unite into the idiophrosome, acrosoma of Lenhossek, a protean phase, as the idiophrosome and an idioaloptosome, both surrounded by the idiophrosome, the archoplasmic vesicle; but the idiocosome disappears in the metamorphosis of the spermatid into a sphere, the idiophrosome."

Rural Training Expanded to All Over Age 17

Georgia Wartime Courses Given $577,150 of Federal Funds.

Special wartime training courses for rural Georgians will be expanded to include anyone over 17 years of age under a plan adopted here yesterday by the vocational committee of the State Board of Education.

Heretofore the program has been restricted to youths.

The plan will be submitted to Washington for final approval. Federal funds totaling $577,150 are available for the program.

In an expansion of present training, the state's 400 teachers of vocational agriculture will organize rural classes stressing four subjects—farm shop, dairying, poultry and beef production.

Courses will be provided in the maintenance and repair of tractors, trucks, automobiles and farm machinery; metal work; woodworking; elementary electricity and methods of increasing milk, poultry, egg, peanut, soybean, pork, beef, mutton, lamb, wool and vegetable production.

Good Morning

PLANTED TURNIPS?

Did you get your turnips planted on that last rain? It was a mighty good time. I was just finishing scratching in our first planting last Thursday afternoon, when a friend came along. He was asking me all sorts of questions about how to plant turnips. He wanted to know why I was raking work well. The raked leaves, thrown over the ground where you have raked in the seeds, will help to hold the moisture and also to protect the tender sprouts from the hot sun.

If you haven't bought your turnip seed, you will discover that the world is at war when you go to the seed store. They tell me that the Japs out on the Pacific coast have been furnishing us a good many of four garden seeds, and now that the Japs are in restricted areas, we are paying more for our turnip seed. Why can't we save our turnip seed? That may be a foolish question, but I am going to try it. We can save collard seed. I don't see why we couldn't let turnips go to seed and save them. Which would mean saving some money that can go into war stamps.

All this writing about turnips has got me downright hungry for some potlikker. When I can have a bowl of potlikker, with some cornbread crumbled in it, and a dash of pepper sauce, and a glass of buttermilk on the side—well, ain't it grand to be alive?

And when I got back in the patch I found another friend. He had come by to borrow the wheelbarrow to haul some rotted leaves to scatter over his turnips, which he had sowed earlier in the afternoon. Said he got the idea from me last summer. It did work well. The rotted leaves, thrown over the ground where you have raked in the seeds, will help to hold the moisture and also to protect the tender sprouts from the hot sun.

Miss Herlihy Faces Murder Accusation As Men Answer Call to Duty

With many men called into the military services, the forest fire has become a fearful detriment to the war effort, it was brought out yesterday at the opening of a two-day meeting here of foresters from 11 southern states.

Billowing clouds of black smoke from forest fires could hinder air patrols operating off the coast and air bases inland, foresters pointed out. And the loss of trees by uncontrolled fire soon might hamstring the lumber industry.

"All lumber companies, practically, are wrapped up in war orders," said Fred H. Lang, Arkansas state forester. "Virtually every foot of lumber they cut is going to the Army or Navy. They can't spare men to fight fires."

Farmers starting sedge fires and then leaving them unwatched came in for criticism from the foresters, along with careless smokers. Around 98 per cent of all forest fires are started by people, it was brought out, and of this figure 50 per cent is blamed on arson and 50 per cent charged off to carelessness.

Some women have been substituted for men in forestry work. Lang reported that two women have been chosen to replace two foremen in Arkansas, and predicted that more will be needed soon.

Rev. John J. Kennedy Named Army Chaplain

ATHENS, Ga., Aug. 17.—The Rev. John J. Kennedy, priest of St. Joseph's Catholic church here, has been appointed an auxiliary chaplain to serve the Corps Area Signal School, located in Athens. The appointment was made by the Most Reverend John O'Hara, Catholic military bishop, now located in New York.

Father Kennedy served in the first World War as a chaplain with the rank of lieutenant colonel in the Australian Army.

STATUTE SUSPENDED.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—(P)—The house completed congressional action today on legislation suspending until June 30, 1945, the operation of the three-year statute of limitations applicable to offenses involving defrauding the government.

MISS HERLIHY met Carr at an Army social function.

They became engaged and had tentatively agreed on September 15 as a wedding date. Both had been married previously. Colonel Herlihy, infantry commander at Fort Huachuca, said the marriage of his daughter to Carr had been delayed by Carr's divorce proceedings.

Herlihy said in a statement he was convinced his daughter was "fighting for her life."

"Margaret's face and body still are terribly bruised from the handling Carr gave her," Herlihy said. "We have witnesses who heard her screaming for help long before they reached home."

Miss Herlihy's preliminary hearing was set for Thursday.

SAYS ARNALL SUPPORT MAINLY PROTEST VOTE

Editor Constitution: Mr. Arnall, in the race for Governor, says he does not want the "protest" vote, and we are wondering what other vote will get, apart from the "favorite son" vote of his home section? As we see it, there are but two votes, all told, with but little exception. One is for Talmadge and the other is against Talmadge. And this has been the issue from the beginning of the campaign, seen in protest against a third candidate. The "protest" group declared against it for the reason given that a third candidate would not divide the Talmadge vote, only the "protest" vote. If therefore Mr. Arnall does not get the "protest" vote, what vote of any consequence will he get? Yes, there may be some still for Rivers, and because of Mr. Arnall's connection with the Rivers administration, vote for Mr. Arnall, but that would be a Rivers vote after all.

How fearfully this "protest" vote idea carries on, especially as we see it, as we read two Atlanta papers. To what ends are they not going to gather up all and everything they can to charge to Talmadge, and when doing this, conclude with the presentation of Mr. Arnall as the one way of escape.

Take this example, please. Down in Moultrie, when Talmadge opened his campaign, it rained, while at Newnan the day was marked by sunshine. And yet the papers played it up as if the God of heaven was thus throwing upon Talmadge and smiling upon Arnall, so indicating His choice in the race in Georgia for Governor. Yes, that happened in Georgia, and while it may be politics, it has much the appearance of profaning deity, to some men and women who yet worship God and revere His name.

After all, thoughtful men and women of Georgia consider the office of Governor of sufficient importance to demand a candidate appealing on his own behalf, rather than first the "ruins" of another, and himself as the one hope left. Talmadge is not waging that kind of campaign. Talmadge, on his own personality, on his own merits, on his own assurance of steward administration, stands before the people asking thus for their vote.

In these perilous times Georgia needs an outstanding, upstanding man, one who is a man in his own shoes. Talmadge is just that, in my esteem, and I am for Talmadge.

PEGLER WRITES TRUTH AND WILL CONTINUE

Editor Constitution: Permit me to express my appreciation of Westbrook Pegler.

Would that the ministers of the gospel were as fearless in revealing the truth—"Tobacco Roads" would not be so numerous and Christian training schools would be erected where said roads exist.

A dependable voice echoes: "Know the truth and it will make you free." Free from selfish politicians who are responsible for the adverse conditions of the United States.

Mr. Holland would have us think only of things fairest, things most sweet. For instance: Roses and whitewashed children and women.

Pegler is endowed with a sense of justice. He has the ability to reason from cause to effect and he will continue to enlighten those who long for progress through the medium of truth.

Long live Pegler! Though a million voices cry: "Eliminate Pegler . . ." he will abide with the people.

Yours for truth that will set us free.

Ellis Arnall Attacks Redwine; Promises Highway Probe

By LAMAR Q. BALL.
Constitution Staff Writer.

LYONS, Ga., Aug. 17.—The name of Charles Redwine, president of a Talmadge senate and manager of the Talmadge campaign strategy, was linked by Ellis Arnall today with an impending investigation of State Highway Department operations.

"We're going to examine every bid and every paving job that is being handled by our present highway board," Arnall told citizens of five east Georgia counties gathered in the Toombs county courthouse here today to cheer the man who pledges the return of democracy in Georgia.

"It is significant that the secrets of the present highway department setup are being guarded by a man who is the Governor's cousin," said Arnall, referring to Gene Wilburn, present chairman of the highway board. "It is most significant that the biggest business of Charles Redwine today is asphalt contracts and we're going to dig into those contracts to find out why they induced him to act as campaign manager of the present Governor." Arnall's first references to Redwine by name in his promised investigation of the highway affairs of Georgia came as the audience was told:

Certain Election.
"They're trying to say I'm going to name a former governor as president of the highway board when I'm elected. When they start talking about the appointments I'm going to make—they must concede that I'm elected. I'll admit that I'm certain of this election—but I have made no commitments to any man or woman in Georgia as to what appointments I will make. I can promise only this—that I won't appoint the present Governor as chairman of the highway board. I won't appoint any former governor and I won't appoint anyone who will spend his time in the highway board trying to be elected governor."

As Arnall's automobile brought him to Lyons today, it was followed by a caravan of automobiles from Treutlen and Emanuel counties. In those cars were packed men and women from the counties that adjoin Toombs, where the candidate made his address. The Treutlen delegation was headed by Jim Gillis Sr., a notable political leader of this area and an intense worker for the election of Ellis Arnall.

Delegations converged on the Toombs county courthouse today from Emanuel, Bulloch, Tattnall and Treutlen, to hear the Arnall address.

Copies of school books were passed through the audience today, showing how Talmadge broke a five-year contract the state had with publishers so that Talmadge could voluntarily increase the cost of the books to the state of Georgia.

"He needed campaign funds so badly," said Arnall, "that he was willing to sell out the state of Georgia to induce the school book publishers to contribute to his campaign fund."

The books that Arnall is carrying around the state using as evidence are "New Language Goals," a fifth grade book on English.

"The spendthrift Rivers regime paid only 30 cents a copy for that book," Arnall showed from state records.

42-Cent Textbooks.
"While the so-called economical Talmadge administration is paying 42 cents for the same book, published from the same plates. If that's what Talmadge calls economy—he certainly has his own system."

Arnall related how Talmadge, just before Pearl Harbor, had openly expressed his hatred for President Roosevelt and had pursued that hatred to the extent that he vetoed every defense measure passed by the Georgia legislature. "A man who was so opposed to the national administration and its efforts to defend America, certainly couldn't change his views merely because of the Pearl Harbor incident. He still hates the commander-in-chief of the United States Army and Navy and he'll continue to knife him whenever he can."

A free press, in Talmadge's mind, is a press that supports Talmadge, Arnall said.

"My opponent never attacks me—he attacks only the two Atlanta newspapers," said Arnall. "He hates them because they do not approve of him."

And then Arnall reminded his audience:

"He never mentions the weekly press of Georgia—that is almost solidly against him."

"Talmadge," said Arnall, "says the two Atlanta newspapers are unfair; he charges that they don't give him a break; he complains they don't cover his meetings properly."

Ad in Statesman.
"I wonder just what the Governor means by fair treatment," said Arnall. "I tried to buy an ad in that so-called newspaper of his—the Statesman. I sent him the money along with my ad. It was sent back to me and the ad was never printed."

"I see plenty of Talmadge ads in the Atlanta newspapers—they don't turn him down. I see plenty of Talmadge stories in the Atlanta newspapers—they assign special reporters to cover his meetings."

"I wonder what his definition of a free press—it certainly can't be 'The Statesman.'"

Roos Sharp, an attorney, introduced Arnall to the crowd. The solid old courtroom of Toombs county rocked with cheers as Arnall pledged his full co-operation to the national war effort.

Cheers Platform.
Every point in the Arnall platform brought a blast of spontaneous cheers—the rescue of the battered Georgia school system; the pardon, racket clean-up; the return of the power over state finances to the legislature; the removal of gubernatorial authority over elected officials; the appointment of a state auditor by the legislature.

"I can't find a single promise of any reform in state government from my opponent," said Arnall. "He has no platform. He merely intends to continue his rule-or-ruin policy without changes."

Arnall shook hands with the citizens of Lyons and all the visitors who had gathered in town for the day. After the speaking he moved over to Wadley, in Jefferson county to shake hands with the citizens there.

Tomorrow Arnall will speak at Gibson, Ga.

VACCINATION RECORD SET.
Vaccination of 3,700 persons in one day at a single Glasgow, Scotland clinic was hailed as a record for civilian vaccinations. The rush for the serum occurred when 20 civilians were stricken after six were taken ill aboard a ship in port.

FUNDS FOR ARNALL.—Most of the 18,000 members of the Associated Master Beauticians and Barbers of Georgia are backing Ellis Arnall for governor. Mrs. LaVada Hulbert, president, is shown presenting a check from the state group to Devereaux McClatchey, chairman of the Fulton Arnall-for-Governor Club. The money will help Arnall in his campaign.

License Funds 'Disappeared,' Beauticians Say

Have a Lot of Questions To Ask Talmadge, State Group Asserts.

The more than 18,000 members of the Associated Master Beauticians and Barbers of Georgia have a lot of questions to ask Governor Talmadge before the September primary, Mrs. LaVada Hulbert, president, said last night at the Ellis Arnall headquarters in the Ansley hotel.

"We will begin with a meeting of the beauticians of Fulton county at 8:15 o'clock tomorrow night at the Ellis Arnall headquarters in the Ansley hotel," Mrs. Hulbert declared. "We will discuss ways and means of ridding the state of Talmadge."

Among the things barbers and beauticians would like to know, she continued, is what became of the more than $29,000 paid into the state in licenses during the last two years that has "disappeared."

Figures Cited.
"Records at the secretary of state's office showed we paid $34,045.10 in licenses during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1941," Mrs. Hulbert stated. "That money was paid in for the operation of our state board. And the board got only $18,831.91."

During the fiscal year ended June 30, 1942, she charged, beauticians and barbers paid in licenses $29,583.55 and the state board received for operating expenses only $15,672.28.

"We knew the last legislature gave the Governor the right to take money from one fund and give it to another," she said, "but we are interested in knowing where this money went. We think it might have wound up in the 'wild life' department."

Barbers and beauticians also would like to know why the state board—designed to protect the public—consists of only three members when the law provides for five, Mrs. Hulbert said, adding:

Two Inspectors.
"We also would like to know why the state board has only two inspectors when the law says that five are to be employed."

The three-member board was working half time last year until a delegation from the state association called upon the Governor and protested, she said.

"Another thing we would like to know is why Talmadge appointed Marion Sumner—who was not even a beautician—chairman of the board in 1941," Mrs. Hulbert declared. "The law says a person must have five years of experience to serve on the board, and this woman took the board herself after she was made chairman."

Talmadge removed Marion Sumner from the board January 14. The three members of the board now are P. C. Hutchenson, L. P. Smith and Jep H. Parham, who succeeded Marion Sumner as chairman.

"We succeeded in getting a law passed about 12 years ago providing for the state board in order to better the standards of barber shops and beauty parlors and insure the protection of the public," she explained. "We were assessed a $2 expense fee each year to maintain this board, its inspectors and enforcement officials."

"Each member is required to submit a health certificate with his license application each year. Each shop is supposed to meet sanitary standards set by the state board of health. But those standards are not being met."

"We want to know about that, too."

Any Lessening Of Powers Hit By Talmadge

Mismanagement, Waste Would Result, Governor Asserts.

CLAXTON, Ga., Aug. 17.—(AP) Governor Talmadge, beginning a week of intensive stump speaking in his re-election campaign, asserted here today that to weaken the present powers of the governor would cause waste and mismanagement in state affairs.

Speaking here and at Baxley, he said that before the reorganization laws of the Russell administration "there was a shameful scattering of authority; the different bureaus were responsible to nobody, and the state's money was wasted."

Attacks Arnall.
Now, he added, Attorney General Ellis Arnall, his opponent, wants to "return the state operation to that scattered authority which existed before our present laws were adopted. I didn't make these laws, the general assembly made them and the people of Georgia indorsed them at the polls."

"I used them from 1933 to 1937 to pay the state out of debt. They (referring to what he called 'the Rivers-Arnall crowd') used them from 1937 to 1941 to wreck the state financially and cause loss of jobs to go broke on account of the debts that were due from the state not being paid to them promptly."

"You remember when the people used to want something done that was right, honest and decent and the governor could not do it because he did not have the authority and they want to give this authority to boards and bureaus not responsible to the people of Georgia."

Used Pencil in Hand.
The laws adopted 18 months before he became Governor for the first time, he added in his prepared address, "put the proper authority on the elective head of the state government—and that is where it belongs."

The general assembly had provided a red pencil for Georgia and I had told the people that if they would put this red pencil in my hand I would strike off all of the useless expenses of the state. The voters of Georgia put that pencil in my hand and I used it."

Talmadge reviewed his debt payments in his present and previous administrations, charged "the same old plunderbund crowd" now is trying to get back into office and renewed his assertion that reporters of several state newspapers were on the public pay roll in the previous administration.

With best wishes, I am
Yours sincerely,
JOHN A. CORRY.

Martinelli Can Cook, Too, He's Proud To Say

Giovanni Martinelli, jovial veteran of 30 seasons with the Metropolitan Opera Company who paused here yesterday en route to Sea Island Beach, wished to arrange to sing for the boys in a nearby government hospital on his return trip.

"What sort of act does he put on?" the woman in charge of the hospital's entertainment asked friends of the artist who called to make the arrangements.

"Tell the young lady that I can sing," he replied, laughing heartily when told of her response. "And tell her also that I am an expert cook—and perhaps better known here as the latter."

He referred to a letter, just received from a woman in Florida who had read an article in The Constitution two weeks ago which gave one of the tenor's famous recipes. The writer begged him for additional culinary advice.

Dr. J. A. Corry To Support Ellis Arnall

Attack on University Is Blamed in Letter to Governor.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.
BARNESVILLE, Ga., Aug. 17.—Dr. J. A. Corry, well-known physician and member of the State Board of Health, today withdrew his support of Governor Talmadge, and mailed the Governor the following letter:

Governor Eugene Talmadge, Atlanta, Ga.
Dear Governor Talmadge:
It was my pleasure and privilege to introduce you when you spoke at Barnesville in your last gubernatorial campaign, and pledge you my support.

I had hoped that I would be able to support you in your race for governor in this campaign. Now that you continue your attack on the University of Georgia and the educational system of Georgia, and your attack on Dr. Caldwell, I will have to, as a true Georgian who loves his state and its educational system, be compelled to withdraw my support.

I am surprised and hurt very much that you continue your attack on this great educational system. I am asking all true friends of the university to support Mr. Ellis Arnall for governor.

With best wishes, I am
Yours sincerely,
JOHN A. CORRY.

No Thanks Due You, Knox Tells Workers In Seized Plant

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Secretary Knox said today that the Navy's seizure of the General Cable Company plant at Bayonne, N. J., last Friday "must under no circumstances be construed as an indorsement of the attitude of the group of the employees who precipitated such action."

Knox made the statement in a telegram to Michael Petrakian, employees' leader who had wired President Roosevelt a promise that the workers would double their efforts now in order to offset the loss in production caused by the work stoppage last week.

The Navy acted after the employees had gone out on an unauthorized strike resulting from a wage dispute.

The Labor Board had attempted to settle the dispute, but Knox declared that it failed because workers, in striking, defied it.

Knox's telegram to Petrakian declared that the worker's action was "a dangerous threat to the success of our national effort in this critical emergency."

"The Navy has too much fighting to do to be managing plants which should be operating in the American way under their own management," Knox said, "and I am sure the men will want to relieve the Navy promptly of this responsibility."

There were no reports of Americans being injured, however. General Bradley did not explain the nature of the disturbances affecting the United States troops. As a result, the town in which the incident occurred was placed out of bounds for United States troops and they were forbidden to enter it.

Additional charges of disorderly conduct and fighting in jail were docketed last night against George Hinson, 55, of a Georgia avenue address, and G. H. Head, 38, of Rome, after they had allegedly attacked Turney Drew Hilton in a corridor at police headquarters.

Hinson and Head were arrested on charges of drunk on the streets, and the additional charges were the outgrowth of an altercation while the two were being booked in at the station lieutenant's office.

Following the altercation, Hinson was treated at Grady hospital for bruises about the eye.

IMAGINE A BUS GETTING FAN MAIL!

Folks generally take service for granted. They are so used to it, they think nothing of it until it isn't there. Then they scream. So it is a surprise to all of us here to see actual fan mail. Who ever heard of a Coach Line getting fan mail? But we do.

Somewhere the citizens who "Go Suburban" have realized what a tough job it is to operate a line of Coaches during wartime. They know the shortage of tires and the gasoline rationing have thrown a sudden strain on our operation.

So they forgive us when we keep 'em waiting once in a while.

Alfred Webb First To Join Cracker Unit

Former Constitution Worker Enlists in New Marine Platoon.

The first man to enlist in the Marine Corps Cracker Platoon, which will be composed entirely of Atlantans, was a former employee of The Constitution.

The No. 1 man is Alfred Webb Jr., of 461 Highland avenue, N. E., son of Mrs. Kathryn E. Webb. Young Webb was formerly employed in the display department of The Constitution. Yesterday he walked into the Marine recruiting station at 76 Forsyth street, N. W., telling officials he wanted to be the first man enlisted.

The platoon will be composed of 60 Atlantans, local officials said, and will be formally sworn in August 26 at a public ceremony to be held around the flagpole at Five Points. The men will remain intact during the training period and thereafter as long as possible.

Young men desiring to join the platoon will be given free transportation from their homes to the recruiting office by calling the Marine station or the Red Cross motor corps.

Following the platoon's preliminary training at Parris Island, the platoon will be sent to Camp Pendleton, Calif., for further training.

While awaiting transfer to the Parris Island training station, members of the Cracker Platoon will be royally entertained by local civic and patriotic organizations.

U. S. Bombers Raid France for First Time

lied fighter escort "splendid protection." The RAF Spitfires actually accompanied the bombers over Rouen, while the American fighter planes participated in diversionary flights.

Stepping out of the flying fortress "Yankee Doodle," the square-jawed General Eaker, tugged at a battered cap about his head and praised his youthful crews, saying they had carried out their mission "nonchalantly and coolly."

"I watched the bombs drop through the open bays," the general said. "Then I grabbed the bottle and went back to the waist of the ship and looked out and saw bombs drop right at the heart of the target."

The bomber chief said that bright sunlight outlined the target and the fortress, and only one run, keeping formation from the time they left the field to their return several hours later.

One American colonel piloting his craft, called "Butcher Shop," dropped the first bombs on the target. He was in command of the lead formations.

General Spaatz and his staff, accompanied by a group of RAF officers, stood in the control tower here as the sun was setting. They watched anxiously for the return of the field ground crews also awaited the same sight.

Then, three by three, the first black specks appeared in the sky. The groups standing on the field silently counted the images. As it became apparent all were sailing back to the fortress, the ground crews broke into loud cheers.

Young Captain William Cowart, of Cowart, Va., Eaker's aide, exclaimed as the general's plane swept to a perfect landing:

"Blew Sky High."

Bombardier Second Lieutenant George Ludolph, 27, St. Paul, Minn., who came in the last flight with "Big Stuff," declared:

"We laid 'em right on the locomotive sheds, blew them sky high."

Youngest man on the flight was Sergeant Frank Christensen, 18, Racine, Wis. He said:

... The Market Basket

By JANE NOLAND.

For fun or no gas, we suggest a back-yard picnic. If you have a grill, or if you just build a fire out there between the rose bushes, roasting ears are still the outdoor chef's delight. Get them before they're gone—at 25 cents a dozen.

Another outdoor dish is fried apples, and since the apple market is flooded, prices are getting lower every week, and cooking apples are especially cheap. And while you're frying, you might try some red fish fillets (27 cents a pound) or flounder (32 cents a pound) or cornmeal.

Less glamorous, but a long favorite with southern cooks, is turnip salad, and a new crop is coming in now at 10 cents a pound. And for hot nights when heavy desserts pall, those California Bartlett pears are now on the market, priced three for a dime.

New York City Faces Hot Water Rationing

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Timetable bathing, shaving, laundering and dishwashing appears in prospect for New York city apartment house dwellers, whose supply of hot water would be limited to certain hours of the day under a rationing plan outlined by city officials.

Hot water would flow only between the hours of 6:30 and 9 a. m. and 5 and 8 p. m. under the program formulated by a committee of real estate boards and associations.

The mayor, announcing that New Yorkers will be asked in about a week to accept the limited hot water, said yesterday if the public did not co-operate "we may all have to endure hot-waterless days" because of a scarcity of fuel.

Survivors include his wife, a daughter, Betty Louise, 10, son, William Ewell Jameson Jr., his mother, Mrs. C. J. Jameson, three brothers, F. L. Jameson, Tampa, Fla., and C. E. and F. R. Jameson, Atlanta.

Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Brookhaven Baptist church. Burial will be in the Decatur cemetery.

Evidence Fails To Back Higgins Steel Charges

WPB Can't Find Direct Violations; Warehouses Being Probed.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—(AP)—As a direct result of the "black market" charges made by officials of Higgins Industries, Inc., New Orleans, shipbuilders, the War Production Board today announced an intensified investigation into the operations of steel warehouses.

WPB's compliance division summarized a 2,000 word report on its inquiry into recent assertions of Frank Higgins, general manager of the New Orleans firm, in two paragraphs:

"1. No evidence was developed to show directly that steel products had been shipped to the Higgins company in violation of WPB orders.

"2. However, there is evidence to indicate that some steel warehouses, in addition to the 22 penalized last spring in other cases, may have violated WPB quota regulations."

Apart from possible price-ceiling violations, the compliance branch reported finding no evidence of a black market, in the accepted use of the term, in information furnished by three members of the Higgins family—Frank, his brother Andrew J. Higgins Jr., and their father and the president of the company, Andrew J. Higgins.

Atlanta Mother Receives Letter On Jap Leaflet

ulated air raid incident in Hollywood, with movie stars rushing to the rescue, makes good reading. But frankly, it seems a little comic, doesn't it, when the black-out comes to Main street in Nampa, Idaho, more than 2,500 miles from the Atlantic and 700 from the Pacific coasts?

Or does it? On second thought, doesn't it seem pretty swell, doesn't it mean that all Americans are alive to the peril and alert to the world situation, when a little town of 12,000 persons, ringed in by great mountain ranges, organizes its air raid precautions system, disciplines itself for emergency and takes its action states?

"But, honestly, you really don't expect any bombings here, do you?" I asked the head of Nampa's civilian defense group. It was like touching a match to a powder keg. "That's just like one of you east coast wise guys!" he snorted angrily. "All you can envision is bombs over New York."

"Did you ever study the way the Japanese bomb?" he demanded. "They always go inland. It's the element of surprise. 'You're dam' tootin' we expect bombs here. We'd be a complacent lot, wouldn't we, if we just sat back and said it can't happen here.' Well, maybe it can't, but we're going to be ready if it does!"

Every place through the west is the same. Every place the middle-aged and elderly home-guard drills nightly. The women study first aid, roll bandages, knit and sew for the Red Cross and the services. Householders have to hide their garden hose to keep the kids from turning it in as scrap rubber.

Unmarried women are tossing up profitable jobs to join the "WACKS" or learn spot welding or electric drilling for war production work. Just as I have taken young men from the farms and factories, the armed service has absorbed so many doctors and dentists that many communities in the midwest are acutely short of such services.

It is a miracle that these vigorous western people have not long since formed a vigilante committee—a committee to deal summarily with all Broadway pundits who dare to decry the "complacency" of the midwest. (Next) The midwest has some ideas of its own about how to win the war.)

Scout Honor Court Is Held at LaGrange Special to THE CONSTITUTION. Merit badges were given for proficiency in many fields. One Scout was made second class and one first class. Other members of the court present were George Whitley, acting secretary; Frank Hutchinson, and Charles Geer.

39-Year-Old Grandfather To Follow His Son Into Army

AUGUSTA, Ga., Aug. 17.—(AP)—James P. McMichael Jr., 39-year-old grandfather, is all set to follow his son into the Army, turning over the family's meat and grocery business to Mrs. McMichael for the duration. Son Marion McMichael, who was in the National Guard before the war, is now a first-class private at the Army Air Corps gunnery school at Las Vegas, Ariz. Father and Grandfather McMichael, who's "been cutting meat for over 25 years and been in the grocery business for 15," figured he could be of some help in the Quartermaster Corps. So he put in his application for officers' candidate training, was approved and is now awaiting his call.

When it comes Mrs. McMichael says she will carry on the meat and grocery business until he comes back home. Another son, James David, is now 18, and McMichael expects it won't be so very long before he is in the war too.

"There's a job to be done, and we sort of like to be on the front seat," he declared.

Corporal Gable Loses Mustache, Raised to $66

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Broad-shouldered Clark Gable, who once drew fabulous sums for wearing uniforms in the movies, became a $66-a-month corporal in real life today—and plunged right into one of the Army's toughest training grinds.

A private for the duration of a transcontinental train trip, Gable was promoted as soon as he enrolled in the Air Forces Officer Training School, nicknamed the "Streamlined West Point" because of its rigorous schedule. All students are corporals or sergeants.

Loses Mustache. After 12 weeks of getting up at 5:15 o'clock and working until dark, the actor will be graduated as a second lieutenant. After that his future, in his own words, will be "whatever the Army orders."

Gable lost his handsome mustache before his first day in the school was completed. In accordance with regulations prohibiting such adornments on anyone less than a first lieutenant, the newly-promoted corporal went to a barber shop and received a close shave.

The barber shaved off half the mustache and, for the benefit of news cameramen, Gable completed the job.

Size 11 Shoes. At the command commissary, he was given a full Army outfit, including a pair of No. 11 heavy-duty, government-issue shoes.

His outfit also included a heavy Army overcoat, and he perspired freely as he lugged it back to his quarters.

The wealthy actor's first lesson at the training school was instruction in how to make his bed. Gable's enrollment took place in the lobby of one of the Miami Beach resort hotels taken over by the air forces. Military police kept out the curious, but a corporal's guard of the screen lover's feminine fans managed to get a peek through the windows.

Smiling and Affable. Smiling and affable, Gable told reporters he couldn't discuss his military life, except to say that "my country is at war and I just want to carry my share."

Asked if he could have chosen an easier route to a commission, he replied seriously: "I think this is the right way to go."

Gable said he felt he is in "pretty good shape" physically, but soldiers on duty in the lobby were willing to bet privately he will lose up to 25 of his 195 pounds before he completes the course. For the first six weeks, he will not be permitted to leave the hotel where he is quartered except to go to classrooms and the drill field. Then he will become an "upper classman," and have the privilege once in awhile of going to a movie.

With Gable was a close friend, cameraman Andrew J. McIntyre, who decided to enlist in the school with the actor.

Gene Autry Reports At Army Air Base SANTA ANA, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Gene Autry, the singing cowboy, has reported at the Santa Ana Army Air Base for basic training. He enlisted in the Army Air Forces at Chicago August 1 and was rated a technical sergeant. Autry had more than 200 hours in the air as a civilian flyer.

Rudy Vallee Joins Coast Guard LONG BEACH, Cal., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Rudy Vallee, band leader and crooning radio star, today joined the Coast Guard as a bandmaster with the rank of chief petty officer.

Lieutenant Max Sturges, assistant personnel officer in the Long Beach Coast Guard office, said Vallee had been approved physically and "now is going through the details."

There was no previous announcement today that he had come here from Hollywood to enlist. He is 41 years old. Vallee enlisted in the Navy at the age of 15, just before World War I, and spent three months in the service before his age was discovered. He was shipped home. In

Jackie Coogan's Baby Brother Wins Role in Jane Withers' Picture

By Louella Parsons.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 17.—(INS) Hold everything! Stop the presses! Boris Morros and S. P. Eagle, who made history when they assembled the most potent cast in years for "Tales of Manhattan," have a new idea. The boys have been huddling for days now and have made up their minds to film "Grand Street Boys," based on the club which has done so much to help unfortunate boys get started right.

The membership includes men in the political, the religious and the literary world who grew up in the poor district of Grand street and became famous. Former Cardinal Hayes was a member; Al Smith, Jimmie Walker, Irving Berlin and Eddie Cantor all pay dues. President Roosevelt, who was born on the right side of the tracks, is an honorary member. It wouldn't surprise me if Boris Morros and S. P. Eagle, who stop at nothing, didn't try to get some of the Grand street boys themselves.

October's book-of-the-month selection is to be "They Were Expendable," by William L. White, author of "Journey for Margaret." M-G-M, who bought White's first book, has also nabbed this prize—an account of the boys who manned the torpedo boats when the Japs moved into the Philippines.

The story of Lieutenant Commander John Bulkeley and Lieutenant Kelly, who manned these torpedo boats, is all told in fascinating way by White, who, as a war correspondent, knows his subject. Bulkeley was also in charge of the boat that carried General MacArthur and his family to Australia in safety.

Remember Bobbie (Robert) Coogan, Jackie's baby brother; well you ought to see him now. Robert, as he now prefers to be called, since he has reached the dignity of 17 years, is currently six-feet-two-inches in height and tips the scale at 220, with every indication that he isn't through growing yet. But the news about the hunk of boy today is that he will play himself in Jane Withers' picture at Republic, "Johnny Doughboy." Another newcomer in the cast is Henry Wilcoxon, who was so good as the vicar in "Mrs. Miniver." Henry has been with the Coast Guards for some time but he gets a two-week furlough to make the picture.

It's not every 18-year-old boy who can look at Ann Sheridan and say, "Hello, mom!" No, it takes a veteran hero of the battles of Midway and Coral Sea to earn that honor—and the lucky youngster is none other than Mow Factor (no relation to the famous cosmetic family, although he has the same name). Ann met Max at a USO party after he had been honorably discharged from Uncle Sam's service. Then and there she "adopted" him, professionally, took him out to Warner's and got him a job as a mail boy. If you ask me, it's a hero's life having Ann Sheridan sponsor you.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD AT RANDOM: George Brent has been accepted in the Air Corps; Iris Adrian has said "Yes" to George Jay, wealthy New York restaurant owner, and heads east to marry him after she finishes "Crystal Ball"; Carmen Miranda and the boy friend, Gilbert Soto, with whom she is writing a story, attracting attention at the Brown Derby; George Montgomery, 'tis said, is dividing his time now between Kay Williams and Frances Raeburn, young sister of Kathryn Grayson; and Jim Holtz reaching an understanding before Tim left for the Air Corps. That's all for today. See you tomorrow! Grace Gray, Los Angeles, says: "By buying a bond and a war saving stamp, we'll rekindle the flame in Freedom's lamp."

Norma Shearer is one of the "older" of our movie stars. Her skin is beautiful, and you can bet she doesn't leave off her beauty treatments in summertime. No wise woman will leave them off, not even for a day, because neglect is not quickly or easily repaired.

A Rich Cream To Protect Your Skin This Summer

By Winifred Ware.

Some women have the mistaken notion that there is no need for a rich cream in summertime. I've known women who just discontinued their skin treatment during the summer months, indulging in the wishful idea that because the weather is hot and sticky, and oils pop out around the nose, the skin does not need the daily quota of cream they've been giving it. This wishful thinking comes, too, I'm sure, from the desire for keeping cool, and from the fact that anything oily put on the skin increases the feeling of heat. It may be that many skins could change to a lighter cream for summertime, but it is folly for the mature woman to leave off caring for her skin in summer. Much damage can be done through neglect, damage that never can quite be repaired. Summer's hot winds and sun are drying to the thin, sensitive skin and such a skin soon will show signs of ageing and neglect such as wrinkles at the most vulnerable points around the eyes, at the corners of the mouth and on the throat.

I have in mind today a good, reliable cream which I'd like to recommend for you to use each night on thin, sensitive, and dry skin. Many skins show oiliness around the nose, but actually are dry on the cheeks and other areas. These skins should be treated as "dry," but you should not use much cream on the oily area about the nose.

The cream I'm speaking of is made especially for dry skins and though it doesn't feel particularly oily it does keep dry skins in good condition. I've used it summer and winter with quite satisfactory results. This cream comes in two sizes, $2.25 and $5 jars. Used with care, and once a day, the $2.25 jar will last several months.

I think, perhaps, I should ask you now to begin by "saving" and thrifty with your creams. We have been assured by the WPB that we shall have our creams during the war. But most of our beauty aids, particularly the creams, are made of precious oils. These are scarce, and are needed in large quantity for the military. So though we may have them, we should show our appreciation and patriotism by making each jar go as far as possible. Waste not one drop, and scrape the bottom of each jar! Soon, too, you'll be finding only the larger sizes of jars and bottles on your cosmetic counters, due to a decree by the WPB to save on packaging materials; tops, containers and such. This will work no hardship, it merely means we'll buy a larger size than we used to at one time.

For name of the cream for dry skins that I'm recommending today phone Winifred Ware, Walnut 6565, or write in care of The Constitution, enclosing a self-addressed envelope for reply.

While there ought not to be such a thing as "company housekeeping" among good homemakers, and while no nice guests come with the thought of making a conscious inspection, cleanliness or lack of it makes an unforgettable impression. A thoroughly tidy home says "come again" as graciously as it could be said in words.

How To Recover Boy's Friendship Without Running After Him

By Dixie George.

Dear Dixie: I am 18 years old and very much in love with a soldier whom I will call A. I went with him before he joined the Army, for about two months. When he joined he thought I did not care anything about him, but as far as I was concerned it was love at first sight when I met him. About three months ago a boy, whom I will call T, came between us and we had a grand bust-up. He tells me he loves me very much, for we have gone together on and off for five years, but I have grown to the point where he is just a close friend. He says he wants me for his "nice girl" and wants to date others, while I sit at home and wait for him, but I will not do that.

What I want to know is this: how can I win A back? When we were separated he said he would always love me, but would never ask any girl to come back to him. He sent word to me the other day that he would have been married if it had not been for me; that he still loved me. How can I get him again? Must I drop him a card, and if so, how must I word it? He is stationed in this state, but does not get to come very often. You will have to help me, for my mind stays on him all the time, and I want him back very much.

LOVELY BLUE EYES. I think that your Army beau is stubborn and too self-centered to make any move toward you, and he is also conceited and to the extent that he thinks that you should run after him. Of course, you did not explain your misunderstanding to me, so I do not know what caused the actual break between you two, but remember that there are two sides to every question and it is possible that he faded out of the picture because he thought that you cared so little for him and liked the other boy.

You will have to handle him with gloves on for any obvious attempt on your part to win him back will be termed as running after him. Since he is in camp so near your home wouldn't it be all right to drop him a note, and ask him to let you know when he is coming up again, for you want to see him? Do not make the note gushy and just friendly. You could add a few lines about what you have been doing and tell him some news about yours and his mutual friends. You must realize that if you were the cause of the break, you must be big enough to admit your mistake and be willing to let bygones be bygones. I think even with his stubbornness, he must think a great deal of you, so it is up to you now.

As for this other man, don't think of being foolish enough to let him tell you to be "nice girl" and leave you sitting at home while he steps out with others. If you are his "nice girl," then he should be stepping out with you. If you place him in the category of a close friend, that is all the more reason why you should not pay any attention to his whims about wanting you to sit at home and not date others.

Growing, along with home entertainment, is the custom of serving a snack and a cooling drink. Elaborate refreshments need not be attempted, especially in summer, but there should never be any lack of tempting intangibles such as sparkling silver, clean linen, and gleaming glassware that add up to dainty cleanliness.

How To See Your Figure As Others See You

By Ida Jean Kain.

What do you see in the mirror? You think you see a true picture of yourself, but it's more likely to be two other people: the girl you used to look like, and the girl you wish you looked like. Somewhere between the two you get a glimpse of yourself as you are.

All of us have certain impressions of ourselves—favorable, of course—that make it hard to take an unbiased view of the woman in the mirror. Just let me tell you a few instances that go to prove it. Not long ago I happened to hear a woman remarking on the dowdiness of a group of other women. She laughed lightly and said she hoped she didn't look like them. And then she added thoughtfully, "But maybe I do and don't know it." Apparently she didn't. She weighed not one whit less than 210 and was only slightly less wide than a dining table.

It is easy to be mistaken about size. I remember that when I interviewed Lily Pons she appeared so petite to me I couldn't help exclaiming, "Why, you're just little girl!" And those around piped up with the surprised rejoinder, "She's bigger than you are!" It was news to me. Not that I could do anything about it.

The never-to-be-forgotten story is one a friend told on herself. She was working abroad and living in one of those uniforms that are made to fit any size. One day someone said wasn't she putting on a little weight, so the first time she got a chance, she weighed. To her amazement, the scales were up 30 pounds. She hadn't known she was gaining.

You can gain weight without knowing it, and even when you know you have put on too much poundage it is hard to believe what it does to you. At an age-guessing contest at a party, one young man was so undiplomatic as to put the age of a certain girl "past 35 because," he reasoned, "her figure is so settled." Well! She is only 22! And she didn't believe anyone could make such an absurd deduction. The rest of the evening she kept demanding, "I'm not fat, am I?" She is.

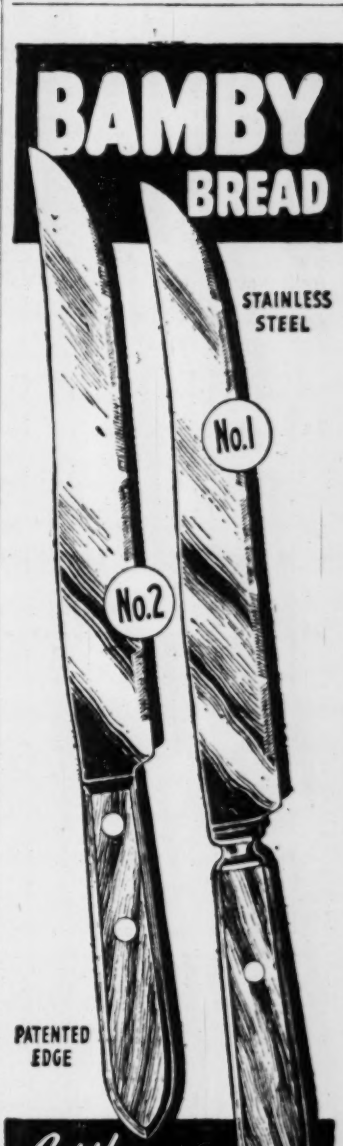

The thin girls can't see their angles any more than the fat ones can see their bulges. Another friend of mine appalled me by announcing she intended to take off 10 pounds. She is already 130 pounds overweight and her lack of vitality is giving her the stooped posture of an older woman.

If you are inclined to be overly curvaceous, you can get an idea of the way you really look by checking up on your weight and measurements now and as they used to be. If you weigh the same and have taken the same size dress over a period of several years, you can't have changed much in looks and probably your figure is good. But if you are having to let your dresses out through the waist and hips, take a critical look at those measurements.

Posture is a fairly good gauge of whether you are too thin. Remember when you used to hold yourself beautifully erect? Then you got in the habit of being tired, and gradually into the habit of poor posture. You'll have to feel fit again before you can change that.

Two leaflets, "Height-Weight-Structure Chart" and "Measure Your Curves" will tell you how close to normal weight and perfect proportions you are. Send large stamped return envelope for these to Ida Jean Kain, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Constipation. In one article you spoke favorably of cascara if a person with constipation must use any laxative help at all. As the same time from what you said I gathered that it would be advisable to take vitamin B complex along with cascara. Is this correct? (C. W. M.)

Answer—It is an excellent plan to combine with the cascara a fair daily ration of vitamin B complex, I think. The cascara is best taken in three small doses daily, rather than in one dose, and some B complex should go with each dose. This is a safe, objectionable medicine one with the constipation habit can use, I think. Send 10 cents and stamped envelope bearing your address for booklet "The Constipation Habit and Colon Hygiene."

Canker Sores. I suffered for years from frequent canker sores. Eventually found that the quickest cure is a light quick touch on each sore with a crystal of copper sulfate (common blue vitriol) held in tweezers. Just one light quick touch. A minute afterward rinse mouth gently with teaspoonful of salt in a glass of warm water. One application of the copper sulfate does the work. It is not so harsh as a silver nitrate.

MY DAY: How Two Soldiers

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Sunday.—Friday was spent largely in doing mail and seeing people!

At tea time, Miss Barbara Ward, foreign editor of "The Economist" who has come over here for a few months, spent an hour with some of us on the south porch. I think it was a most profitable hour, because it showed us that in many ways it is hard in this country to get a complete picture of what is happening in other countries.

The censor has written me a very stern letter about my remarks on the war, and so from now on I shall not tell you whether it rains or whether the sun shines where I happen to be. I imagine that it is permissible to mention whether it is hot or cold, and I can tell you with joy that it was cool enough on Saturday to take a walk in Washington with pleasure.

In talking with Mrs. Florence Kerr, of the WPA, yesterday, I learned one thing which pleased me very much. Among the WPA projects which have been closed down is the Braille project. However, they have found hundreds of canteen utensils which have been bent and bent, but which under clever fingers and use of Braille machinery, are now made to look like new utensils.

I have a delightful letter in my mail, which reads:

"Dear Mrs. Roosevelt: I am sending you a copy of a poem two of us soldier boys wrote while in the Sixth Evacuation hospital. This poem expressed the thoughts of every soldier who loved ones neglect to mail that necessary letter. This poem is our humble effort to tell the people of the U. S. how we soldiers actually feel about our mail. If you can use this poem in any way to help the soldiers, we heartily give our consent. Sincerely yours, 'CORPORAL' AND PRIVATE FIRST CLASS."

Here's the poem:

A SOLDIER'S LAMENT.

"What's the matter? Out of ink, Or is your pen on the blink? All I want is one nice line, To let me know that you are fine. It sure is nice to get a line From some one that's so divine. A letter a day in such a way, Will put the spirits into play. From an old friend, a letter is dear, I hope I am making myself clear. A letter from you I pine, Send one when you have the time. The darkness of eve draws near, So I must close now with tears. Remember me while we're apart, Yours truly with all my heart."

I am sure no one will resist this appeal, so I need say no more.

Jean McIntosh's Wedding To Be Marked by Sentiment

By SALLY FORTH.

SENTIMENT WILL PLAY a major role at the marriage of Jean McIntosh and Warner Morgan, which will be an important event of next week. To insure good luck, Jean will wear a silver coin in the heel of her slipper, the coin having been carried as a good-luck token by her father, Kenneth E. McIntosh, since early school days.

Jean's only ornament will be an exquisite gold cross and chain, which holds deep sentimental interest for the bride-to-be. The chain belonged to her great-grandmother, the late Mrs. John F. McIntosh, who left it to Jean's aunt, Mrs. J. C. Atkinson Sr. Mrs. Atkinson has given Jean the chain on which to suspend the tiny gold cross, which the bride-elect's parents gave her when she was a little girl.

Jean and Eleanor Stafford, whose engagement to Hal Lamb was announced Sunday, are close friends and will both serve as attendants in each other's weddings. For that reason the two brides-elect will share honors at a number of parties. Tomorrow Mary Clapp and Betty Jones will honor the two girls at a swimming party. After the swim, tea will be served and the two honor guests will be given a shower of defense stamps!

Then on Friday Mary Frances Broach will honor the two girls at a luncheon, and on Saturday evening they will again share honors when Betty Carver and Mary Katherine Reeves are co-hostesses at a dinner party.

DELIGHTFULLY ingenious was the stag birthday party given by Lena Hand (Mrs. Harry) Callaway for her husband on Saturday evening at their lovely home in LaGrange, when the officers and members of the board of directors of Callaway Mills gathered for an old-fashioned supper party. Lena's usual cleverness was reflected in the invitations, which read:

"I'm going to have a surprise party for you very fine feller, For all you officers and directors to get together. At seven, a little supper we will eat. And to have you with us will be a treat. Come by car, bicycle, or buggy—come as you may. Just so it's in an informal way. August the fifteenth is the date. So put it on your calendar and don't be late."

Cleverest response of the invitation was Hal Daughdrill's, according to Lena. Hal sent this acceptance:

"Hal Daughdrill's settin' on ready Trying to keep himself steady With his feet on the ground 'Til the fifteenth rolls around. He'll not be late To keep his date, So listen for his knock Just before seven o'clock."

Favors were dime-store trinkets indicative of the guests' hobbies or status, to which were attached rhymes, written by Lena. Harry Callaway's place was marked by a toy top, with the notation: "You're tops at this table, for it's your birthday."

The guests, all of whom are well known in Atlanta, included Fuller Callaway Jr., Cason Callaway, of Blue Springs; Arthur Edge, Ely Callaway, Hal Daughdrill, P. N. Collier, M. M. Trotter, D. Williams, of New York; K. Boatwright, H. G. Smith, Hal Childs, J. A. Perry, of Hamilton; H. D. Glanton, J. J. Milam and C. W. Coleman.

JUST INSIDE the Charles J. Haden yard on Peachtree street, at the corner of Peachtree circle, grows a graceful water oak, which is doing its bit in war work! The tree is 70 feet high, and its branches spread to a width of 50 feet.

In the morning, until 10 o'clock, the tree's shadow falls westward across Peachtree street, and across the opposite sidewalk at the exact spot where the southbound express bus stops to take war workers and other passengers aboard. This friendly oak shields the groups continuously against the fierce morning sun while they stand and wait.

Mr. Haden gives this biography of his tree: On a bleak December afternoon, 37 years ago, while his home was being built, he was in the yard planting shrubbery. A white-haired colored man, selling young trees, stopped and pled with Mr. Haden to purchase the last tiny oak on his wagon. The deal was closed. The tree has a half inch in diameter. That little switch now measures two feet thick.

Whoever passes Rhodes Center any hot morning at the rush hours will notice a group huddled under the shadow of the stately water oak. They might be tempted to give it the military salute, though it wears neither brass buttons nor epaulettes.

GLIMPSED AT the Driving Club pool Saturday afternoon: Marjorie Ragan wearing an attractive bathing suit of pink and blue cotton. . . . Martin Kilpatrick, president of the club, and Mrs. Kilpatrick acquiring a suntan, the latter wearing an off-white latex bathing suit. . . . Betty Haverty looking chic in a white swimming suit. . . . Gus Cleveland making plans with Bobby Troutman for a squash game, Bobby wearing bright red squash shorts. . . . Catherine Tift, who has just returned from St. Simons Island, sport-wearing a blue and white woolen suit. . . . Mary Ann Robinson enjoying a dip, and wearing a flag blue suit. . . . ## Miss Edna Gray And Dr. Conger Wed at Church

BAINBRIDGE, Ga., Aug. 17.—The marriage of Miss Edna Ellen Gray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Delaughter Gray, of Bainbridge, and Dr. Abraham Benjamin Conger Jr., of New Orleans, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Conger, was brilliantly solemnized recently at 9 o'clock in the evening at the First Presbyterian church. The Rev. J. E. Ward performed the ceremony.

Ushers and groomsmen were Jack Gray Jr., brother of the bride; Fields Varner, E. S. Parker, Edwin S. Varner, William Tonge, Dr. Charlie Willis, of New Orleans; William Massee, of Perry, and Leonard Conger.

Mrs. Thomas Holt, of Mobile, Ala., was matron of honor. She wore a gown of shell pink silk net, made with a bodice of lace, and she carried a bouquet of rose-colored California asters. She wore a coronet of asters in her hair.

The bridesmaids were Miss Clara Gray, of Savannah, cousin of the bride; Miss Marjorie Reid, of Macon, and Miss Frances Rich and Miss Mary Bower. The dresses of the bridesmaids were fashioned like that of the matron of honor, and they carried rose-colored California asters and wore coronets of asters in their hair.

The dainty flower girls, Mary Miller and Judy Pilcher, wore shell pink frocks, made empire style, with flower bandeaux in their hair. Their shoes were old-fashioned, nosegays of pastel asters tied with long blue streamers.

The bride entered with her father, by whom she was given in marriage, and was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, A. B. Conger. She was radiantly beautiful in a wedding gown of imported lace fashioned with a full skirt of silk net, and a sweeping train. Her veil was attached to a cap of seed pearls and real lace, and she wore diamond and pearl earrings and a diamond cross. Her bouquet was of deep purple orchids and stephanotis showered with swainsons.

Mrs. Gray, the bride's mother, was charmingly gowned in beige lace and crepe. She wore a shoulder spray of deep purple orchids. Mrs. Conger, mother of the groom, wore shell pink chiffon and black lace with a lavender orchid.

After the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Gray held a brilliant reception at the Stephen Decatur hotel.

For traveling the bride wore a green silk suit with a short fitted coat and a blouse of white chiffon. She wore a brown off-the-face hat and brown accessories. Her flowers were purple orchids.

Burton Lake Is Reported Almost Full

Report for South Shows Water Storage at High Point.

By SYDNEY ROBERTS.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Water storage for hydroelectric power is very favorable, the Geological Survey reported today, making a repetition of last fall's power shortage blackouts in the south unlikely unless power facilities are further taxed for defense service.

The total quantity of water storage, both in the United States and Canada, exceeds that one year ago and also exceeds the average quantity generally available July 31.

Last year low lake levels due to rainfall deficiencies, coupled with unusual electric power consumption, caused the curtailment of nonessential lighting in several southern states. Idle steam plants were pressed into service to meet the power demand which the hydroelectric power plants could not meet because of the low water stages behind the power dams.

But the situation as of July 31, the Geological Survey reported, was this:

"In the Tennessee river basin, Norris reservoir is at the highest level in four years. Combined storage in Norris and Hiwassee reservoirs is 85 per cent of usable capacity, compared with 61 per cent one year ago.

"Burton reservoir, on Tallulah river in Georgia, holds 97 per cent of capacity, compared to 30 per cent one year ago.

"All storage reservoirs used for power purposes in Georgia are reported as being maintained at fairly high levels. Martin lake, on

'Bugs' Baer Says:

I've been checking off the second fronts and there are about eleven. The mezzanine experts have spotted them all the way from Australia to Norway.

Which proves there is a divided command even among the screwballs who haven't got any.

War is such a terrific game that even its kibitzers are important.

I think the best way to start a second front is to volunteer to fight on it. With a million signatures the petition would be sweet stuff in a sugar shortage.

So far every mugg I've heard yelling for a second front has picked out a spot for himself on the third.

PEANUTS HARVESTED.

LOUISVILLE, Ga., Aug. 17.—The harvesting of the earlier plantings of the 1942 peanut crop has begun in Jefferson county.
